Unused Visas Made Available

Congress Adopts Change In U.S. Immigration Law

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (UPI) — The Senate approved and sent to the White House yesterday a major change in the immigration law which would allow more refugees from the Soviet Union, Eastern Europe and Indochina to become U.S. citizens.

The legislation, previously approved by the House of Representatives, was adopted in the Senate by voice vote without debate.

Under current law, natives of independent countries in the Eastern Hemisphere are limited to 170,000 immigrant visas each year and natives of independent countries in the Western Hemisphere are limited to 120,000 visas.

The bill would combine the two limits into a worldwide ceiling of 290,000 immigration visas a year, thereby making available previously unused openings in one hemisphere to the people of the other.

Preference System
Under the immigration preference system — which would remain in effect — refugees have seventh priority and get 6 percent of the overall ceiling.

The 10,200 visas available for refugees from Communist or Communist-dominated countries have proved too small to meet the demand.

But the 7,200 visas available for refugees from the Western Hemisphere are largely unused and, under the legislation, could now be applied to refugees from the Eastern Hemisphere.

The bill is also expected to free visas for the use of those who fall in none of the preference categories and are admitted only if there are any visas that are not used. This is expected to help those from the Western Hemisphere.

Provides Flexibility
Although the contrast between the hemispheres in the numbers seeking visas in the first six preference categories is not as great, the measure would also apply to them.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who shepherded the bill through the Senate, said: "For thousands of backlogged, nonpreference visa petitioners in the Western Hemisphere and refugees in the Eastern Hemisphere where no numbers are available, the enactment of a worldwide immigration ceiling provides hope and flexibility long denied under current law."

The Senate also passed and sent to the White House a companion bill that would eliminate the arbitrary ceiling of two on the number of foreign children U.S. citizens can adopt.

The provision would be replaced with a requirement for a "home study" to protect the interests and welfare of all children adopted from abroad.

Majority in Favor
TEL AVIV, Sept. 21 (UPI) — A large majority in the Knesset will approve the Camp David peace accord if the agreement is presented as a package, a newspaper poll indicated today.

Yehudi Aharonoff reported that 88 to 94 of the 120 Knesset members were likely to vote in favor of removing Israeli settlers from the Sinai if the issue were not separated from the rest of the agreement that deals with the West Bank.

Mr. Begin originally had planned to present the West Bank and Sinai portions of the agreement separately, but opposition leader Shimon Peres wants a package vote.

Officials of other Western industrial nations at the Vienna meeting did not appear to share the U.S. apprehensions concerning peacetime plutonium technology.

In April, at an East-West symposium in Bologna, the Soviet Union disclosed that it intended to develop the technology, while conceding that the use of plutonium in commercial power plants is hazardous.

Virtually all speakers at the workshop gathering — the 22d annual general conference of the Vienna-based International Atomic Energy Agency — emphasized that both the industrial societies and the developing countries needed more nuclear energy.

The director-general of the agency, Sigvard Eklund, mounted a counterattack on the opponents of nuclear power who have been fighting and delaying reactor projects in various Western nations.

"I consider the antinuclear movement as one feature of a much more serious anti-intellectual trend in modern society in affluent countries," he said in an opening address.

He scoffed at what he termed "wishful thinkers who would have a world where the developing countries can make do with windmills while the developed would content itself with zero growth."

West Bank, Gaza Strip Are Cited

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin says that Israeli forces will stay on the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip beyond five years, and that his country will never surrender Syrian territory that it occupies in the Golan Heights.

The prime minister, speaking to officials of major American Jewish organizations yesterday, said that it would be necessary to keep forces on Jordanian soil to "insure Jewish blood is never shed again."

Mr. Begin said that someone in the U.S. State Department, speaking about the accords reached by him, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and President Carter at the Camp David summit, had suggested that Israeli forces would remain on the West Bank and in Gaza for five years.

"I hereby declare we will stay beyond five years," Mr. Begin told an audience of 3,000.

He also said that his country would not surrender any territory in Jerusalem, which was shared by Arabs and Israelis before the 1967 war.

Part of Bible

He said he told Mr. Carter that Israel did not want "one square kilometer" of the West Bank or Gaza, but that "we Jewish people have a claim, a right . . . to sovereignty" in Jerusalem because "it's an integral part of our Bible."

He said that Israel would maintain security forces on the West Bank, but "we leave the question of sovereignty open because we want peace."

Mr. Begin said that at the peace talks Israel was asked to commit itself to leave the Golan Heights. He said that Israel would never do that, because it would enable Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat to aim Soviet-supplied artillery at "every kibbutz in the valley, and this time even be able to reach Haifa."

Mr. Begin said he argued with Mr. Carter, reminding him that in the 1967 war "we were threatened with extinction . . . another holocaust." He said he believed the two accords be ultimately signed with Mr. Sadat could lead to permanent peace.

He said that the Knesset, the Israeli parliament, would decide the issue free of party and foreign pressures. "I will abide by the Knesset . . . Whatever the Knesset decides, we will carry out," he said.

Israeli Army Puts Down West Bank Settlement Bid

TEL AVIV, Sept. 21 (AP) — The Israeli government today began to suppress a rightist challenge to the Camp David agreements, evicting Jewish settlers from a mountaintop camp in the heart of the occupied West Bank.

The Israeli radio reported that seven soldiers and seven Gush Emunim members were injured in fistfights when the army began to carry the would-be settlers off the unauthorized outpost near the Arab town of Nabulus. Other members of the ultranationalist group barricaded themselves in butts set up at the site, the radio said.

"Our people will not go by themselves," a Gush Emunim spokesman, Zvi Slonim, said. "Our main bloc of 250 people is standing together hand to hand."

Mr. Slonim said that the demonstrators included three members of Israel's parliament: Gush: Cohen and Moshe Shamir, of the ruling Likud Party, and Haim Drucfman of the National Religious Party.

A Defense Ministry spokesman said that the army began removing settlers about noon and hoped to finish the task by nightfall. But the operation could take longer, as soldiers had to carry demonstrators one by one down the rocky slopes to the road more than a kilometer away.

Members of Gush Emunim — Hebrew for Bloc of the Faithful — occupied the site, three kilometers southeast of Nabulus, three days ago to protest the accord signed Sunday by Prime Minister Menachem Begin. They claim the right to settle anywhere in the West Bank, and fear that Israeli evacuation of Sinai settlements could set a precedent for dismantling outposts in the West Bank.

Hard-Line Arabs Trying To Recover Credibility
By Jonathan C. Randal

DAMASCUS, Sept. 21 (UPI) — Hard-line Arabs meeting here to frustrate the Camp David agreement today focused on strengthening their own tarnished military credibility in hopes of deterring King Hussein with a reappraisal of their long-standing close relations unless he joined the peace talks.

The summit meeting's immediate task was to shore up Syria, which is the only state present here directly bordering on Israel.

But the hardliners' record since they first met in Libya following Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's visit to Israel in November is hardly encouraging.

Virtually none of the resolutions adopted there has been honored, especially those pledging a unified front and defense pact.

Arab public opinion was scarcely impressed by the Front for Steadfastness and Confrontation — as the hardliners formally call themselves — in March when the Israelis invaded southern Lebanon.

Despite a clause pledging that an attack on one signatory was to be an attack on all signatories, the Front collapsed in May.

Senate Action Is Uncertain

eligible for government-paid health care at the level of his entitlement at home.

An estimated 189,000 persons abroad would be eligible for U.S.-paid coverage if agreements were reached between Washington and their host countries. Of that total, nearly a third live in Canada and Mexico; an estimated 30,000 reside in Italy, 12,000 in West Germany, 10,000 in Britain and about 3,000 in France.

HEW Estimate
The Department of Health, Education and Welfare estimated earlier this year that the annual cost to the U.S. Treasury of the provision would be more than $300 million. Supporters dispute this, pointing out that because the measure merely authorizes the president to negotiate agreements — at best a lengthy process — initial cost would be quite small, perhaps $1 million for the first year.

However, Senate sources said that some members are considering "the cost picture down the road, with mounting expenditures as agreements are reached, and weighing that against this country's balance of payments problems."

Further contributing to the measure's uncertain prospects in the Senate is a legislative snarl involving the Senate's Medicare amendment bill, sponsored by Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga.

That measure, which is supported by the Carter administration, has been reported out by the Finance Committee but not yet scheduled for floor action. Its principal feature is an effort to hold down costs for hospitalization under Medicare and Medicaid, the government-paid program of health care for the needy.

Controversial Objective
But Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., are said to view the bill as a vehicle to carry a broad hospital cost-containment measure, not limited to government-paid programs. That objective is quite controversial.

Some sources anticipate that if the Talmadge bill is amended to broaden its cost-control feature,

S. Africa's Election Move Upsets UN Namibia Effort
By Malcolm Browne

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 21 (UPI) — South Africa's announcement yesterday that it would hold quick elections in its protectorate, South-West Africa (Namibia), came as a blow to United Nations efforts in Africa, and the Security Council is expected to begin an urgent meeting on the subject in the next few days.

The South African decision, announced by Prime Minister John Vorster, provides for elections in the last two weeks of November.

UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim issued a statement immediately after Mr. Vorster's announcement, expressing regrets about the decision.

On April 10 the United States, Canada, France, West Germany and Britain proposed a framework under which the 900,000 inhabitants of the protectorate would receive full independence from South Africa.

The proposal was the result of 18 months of difficult negotiations involving the South African government and its main insurgent opponent in Namibia, the South-West African People's Organization (SWAPO). South Africa accepted the proposal on April 25.

UN Supervision
The proposal was then sent to Mr. Waldheim for UN action, because it called for UN supervision of the transfer of power to a new governing authority in Namibia.

On Aug. 29, Mr. Waldheim issued his own report to the Security Council, embodying the basic agreement that had been reached between the five Western powers and South Africa.

It was that report that Mr. Vor-ster rejected Wednesday, charging that the United Nations was proposing that so many UN troops, 7,500, be stationed in Namibia, that they would amount to "an occupation force."

Mr. Vorster also objected to the number of UN police and administrative officials, 1,500, whom Mr. Waldheim had proposed sending to Namibia during the transition period.

Rhodesia Is Said to Press Attacks in Mozambique
SALISBURY, Rhodesia, Sept. 21 (AP) — Rhodesian troops pressed their attacks against black nationalist guerrilla bases inside Mozambique today, military sources said.

It was learned that the troops struck before dawn yesterday across a central stretch of Rhodesia's rugged 600-mile eastern border with Mozambique. Military headquarters there announced the strike last night in a communique describing the offensive as self-defense operations not aimed at Mozambican troops or civilians.

Since then, the military has been silent, its customary practice until it announces that the troops have withdrawn. The number of soldiers involved is not known. Such cross-border strikes by Rhodesian forces usually are backed by fighter and bomber aircraft.

The new operation is the sixth officially acknowledged full-scale raid by Rhodesia across the tense border. New raids had been widely expected because of official outrage over attacks this month by both Robert Mugabe's Mozambique-based guerrillas and the Zambia-based insurgent army of Joshua Nkomo.

Mr. Nkomo said his guerrillas were responsible for shooting down a Rhodesian civilian airliner in the northwest on Sept. 3. Mr. Mugabe's guerrillas shelled the border town of Umtali five days later.

The military has not reported making a simultaneous cross-border strike against Mr. Nkomo in Zambia, however.

The two guerrilla armies, allied as the Patriotic Front, are fighting to topple the interim biracial government here. The government was established by Prime Minister Ian Smith and three internally based black leaders in negotiations that the guerrillas called refused to join.

Mr. Nkomo and Mr. Mugabe reject the internal settlement for black-majority rule as a sellout to white interests.

Bids Focus On Saudis, Moroccans
From Wire Dispatches

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia, Sept. 21 — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance arrived here today looking for Saudi support to bolster the direct Egyptian-Israeli negotiations agreed to at Camp David, Md. At the same time, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was in Rabat, Morocco, to see King Hassan II ostensibly for the same purpose.

The Saudi response will be the first solid test of the U.S. administration's contention that the sale of 60 F-15 fighters will maintain U.S. influence over a moderate and powerful Arab state.

Saudi Arabia, a potent moral and financial force in the Middle East, is crucial to the U.S. hopes of direct Arab-Israeli negotiations, based on the Camp David summit meeting formula.

Mr. Sadat opened his talks with King Hassan — the first Arab leader he has met since signing the agreements — immediately after arriving from Washington late last night. The two leaders met again at a lunch today and were scheduled to continue their talks through tomorrow.

Tight Secrecy
Egyptian and Moroccan officials maintained tight secrecy reminiscent of that imposed during the Camp David, Md., talks with President Carter and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Although King Hassan warmly welcomed Mr. Sadat's original Middle East peace initiatives, he and his government have maintained a silence on the draft agreement.

Egyptian officials said privately that Mr. Sadat is anxious to obtain King Hassan's public approval to avoid the impression that the agreements have isolated him in the Arab world. No Arab chief of state thus far has come out openly in support of the agreements, and the five most militant Arab leaders are meeting in Damascus to discuss how to wreck them.

Officials said that Mr. Sadat decided to extend his stay in Morocco, and was not expected to fly to Cairo until Saturday.

Hussein Noncommittal
In Jordan, Mr. Vance's first stop on this five-day tour, he received a noncommittal but encouraging promise from King Hussein to study the issue. Before Mr. Vance arrived, the Jordanian government had issued a statement which was critical of the Camp David accords.

As Mr. Vance left Amman, there was no open criticism in the statement by Foreign Minister Hassan Ibrahim, who said, "It was agreed by both sides that the dialogue between the two countries should continue."

Saudi Arabia is an important aid donor to the Middle East, including Jordan and Egypt, and it has a strong religious and moral influence.

Jordan's situation symbolizes the dilemma that the Camp David conference has created for the Middle East.

The United States, reporters were told, was going to lean hard on Jordan during the Vance trip.

Among the factors working on King Hussein is that the United States now supplies Jordan with

Accuses Lomrho of 'Meddling' in Rhodesia

Tanzania Seizes U.K. Firm's Holdings

By John Damron

NAIROBI, Sept. 21 (NYT) — A huge British-based conglomerate with substantial holdings in both white and black Africa has been expelled from Tanzania for "meddling" in Rhodesian politics.

The move against Lomrho Ltd. attracts considerable attention here because the company's flamboyant chief executive, Roland (Tiny) Rowland, has gone out of his way to cultivate good relations with black African leaders and is a behind-the-scenes power in many African capitals.

Mr. Rowland, whose corporate style and business deals have drawn fire from British politicians, has played a shadowy role in the tangled Rhodesian situation. He is close to Joshua Nkomo, one of the two leaders of the black nationalist alliance called the Patriotic Front.

Last year Mr. Rowland helped arrange a secret meeting between President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia and Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia to discuss the war. Mr. Smith was said at the time to have traveled to the Zambian capital on a jet plane supplied by Lomrho.

Last month Mr. Smith again met Mr. Kaunda secretly, but this time with Mr. Nkomo present. When news of the session leaked out, arousing fears among other parties to the conflict that a plan was afoot for Mr. Smith to turn power over to Mr. Nkomo, it split the Rhodesian government, the guerrilla leadership and the black African states opposing Salisbury, vastly complicating the Rhodesian picture.

Again, Mr. Rowland was said to have played a role in getting the two sides together.

President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, who learned of the secret meeting six days after it occurred, was furious at both Mr. Kaunda and Mr. Nkomo. He is closer to Robert Mugabe, the other leader of the Patriotic Front, than to Mr. Nkomo.

While Mr. Mugabe has been consistent in his call for a Marxist future in an independent Rhodesia, Mr. Nkomo's political views appear more fluid. He is often described as a man whose ascent to power would not frighten Western entrepreneurs such as Mr. Rowland.

The Tanzanian government announced its intention to nationalize Lomrho's operations in June, well before the secret meeting. It accused the company of "undermining the freedom struggle in southern Africa" and of expanding its interests in both Rhodesia and South Africa despite claims to the contrary.

Other transnational corporations do business in white-ruled Africa, but Lomrho is a special case, the government said, because "Lomrho, through its chief executive, represents itself as the friend of free Africa."

In reply, Lomrho, which was incorporated in 1909 as the London and Rhodesia Company to acquire mining rights in southern Africa, said that it had never sought to deny "the historical existence" of its assets in Rhodesia and South Africa.

Strike Disrupts Alitalia Flights

ROME, Sept. 21 (AP) — A 24-hour strike by stewards and stewardesses has led to the cancellation of all Alitalia flights to or from Rome and Milan tomorrow, the airline announced today.

The strike is scheduled to begin at midnight tonight. The unions are demanding higher pay and greater job protection against seasonal layoffs. A second 24-hour strike is scheduled for next Friday.

Alitalia said that intercontinental flights to North and South America and Africa scheduled for tomorrow would be postponed until Saturday, while other flights were being canceled.

But, the company said, its "policies in independent African countries have necessarily led to a policy of restraint with regard" to those assets.

Active in agriculture, financing, mining, automobile sales, publishing, shipping, textiles and beverages, Lomrho had enterprises in 26 countries in 1975. Since 1971, it has moved to attract Arab shareholders, and in recent years its proportion of revenue from enterprises inside Britain has risen dramatically.

In Tanzania, where it has 18 companies employing 2,500 people, the holdings are relatively minor. Tanzania gave the company three months to negotiate a sale of its assets to a state-run national development corporation. Mr. Rowland visited the country in July for talks with corporation officials, but no agreement could be reached on compensation. On Saturday, with no agreement in sight, the government announced its takeover.

On Monday the Tanzanian government-owned Daily News described Lomrho as "one great colossus besting the face of Africa today" and called its expulsion "an act of liberation."

Mr. Rowland, the newspaper said, "sees and conducts himself as a modern-day Alexander the Great, bopping from one African capital to another, ensuring the expansion and continuity of his empire."

"because it is immediately available." He warned that the world's population would reach six billion by 2000, and deplored that "very little thought is given to the means which must be provided to maintain the standard of living in the developing countries, not to mention what is needed to raise the standard of living in developing countries."

Dr. Elkhund noted that in 1955 the world's total installed nuclear capacity was 5 megawatts, in 1967 10,000 megawatts, and now amounted to 100,000 megawatts with 200,000 megawatts under construction or in a stage of advanced planning. No fatal accident involving radiation has occurred in civilian power plants, he said.

Moscow's representative at the Vienna conference, Ivan Morozov, said in a statement that the Soviet Union and its allies were pushing the development of nuclear power plants, including breeder reactors.

He appeared to ignore critics of nuclear power programs and especially of breeder technology.

Fast breeders are nuclear reactors that permit a more thorough use of natural uranium resources than the conventional atomic power plants. Fast breeders use parts of spent nuclear fuel containing plutonium and produce more fissionable material than they consume. They are said to be 100 times more efficient than most of the atomic power plants now in operation.

The U.S. representative at the Vienna conference, Dale Myers, an undersecretary in the Energy Department, said that there were different views on whether the time was ripe to move "toward breeder commercialization."

Over Reports of Atrocities U.S. Expresses Concern to Nicaragua

By John M. Goshko

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (WP) — The United States expressed deep concern yesterday about reports of atrocities committed by Nicaragua's National Guard against unarmed civilians, and it urged President Anastasio Somoza to "discipline and control" his troops.

A public statement issued by the State Department also called for urgent investigations by the Nicaraguan government and by the Inter-American Human Rights Commission.

The commission is scheduled to go to Nicaragua on Oct. 5 to look into charges of rights violations, but the State Department suggested that, in view of the new allegations, it should make the trip earlier.

U.S. officials said that the statement was prompted, in part, by a report in yesterday's Washington Post quoting residents in the Nicaraguan city of Leon as saying that 14 young men were executed by the guard last Friday as they pleaded for mercy.

Rift May Widen

Inasmuch as Gen. Somoza has denied that his forces have committed atrocities during the civil war that is racking Nicaragua, the statement seems likely to widen the increasingly apparent rift between him and the Carter administration.

In response to questions about U.S. relations with Gen. Somoza, State Department spokesman Thomas Reston repeated earlier assertions that the administration is not seeking the overthrow of Gen. Somoza or any other governmental leader. But Mr. Reston said that the United States holds the Nicaraguan government, which is under Gen. Somoza's dictatorial control, responsible for the actions of its armed forces.

"We are deeply concerned by mounting reports of atrocities committed against unarmed civilians by personnel of the Nicaraguan National Guard," the statement read by Mr. Reston said.

It added: "The government of the United States urges the government of Nicaragua to conduct an urgent investigation and to discipline and control its military forces."

Our ambassador in Nicaragua has expressed our concern to President Somoza.

dent Somoza and he will continue to do so.

The U.S. statement was made as the Organization of American States prepared for a meeting here, at the foreign-minister level, to discuss the Nicaraguan situation. U.S. officials said that Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher will represent the United States at the meeting in the absence of Secretary of State Cyrus Vance, who is in the Middle East.

The OAS meeting is part of a multipronged effort, strongly supported by Washington, to find some means of mediating the conflict between Gen. Somoza and his domestic foes. Gen. Somoza, whose family has controlled Nicaragua for 45 years, is under attack from a broad array of opponents, ranging from leftist guerrillas to important segments of the Nicaraguan business community and the Catholic Church.

U.S. officials said yesterday that the National Guard appears, at least for the moment, to have crushed most of the armed opposition to Gen. Somoza. But, the officials added, new fighting can be expected once the guerrillas regroup.

in the Nicaraguan countryside, and Washington believes that the need for mediation remains urgent.

Esteli Resistance Continues

MANAGUA, Sept. 21 (AP) — Nicaraguan troops, backed by tanks and armored cars, advanced through Esteli today, firing on rebels still resisting fiercely two days after the government claimed to have smashed the revolt against Gen. Somoza.

Reliable sources said that guardsmen penetrated only one sector of the city of 35,000 about 90 miles north of Managua, and that troops were forming for another intensive push.

Numerous firefights were reported, along with heavy sniper fire, in what has been a bastion of resistance for 13 days. Before the ground assault began, National Guard airplanes pounded rebel positions for several days.

There were reports that some nearby hamlets were overrun by soldiers of the Sandinista Liberation Front leaving Esteli, but the reports could not be confirmed.

Price Too High

In the past Iraq has demanded too high a price from its traditional rival and neighbor, Syria.

But Syrian President Hafez al-Assad's now feels "alone in the trenches" after Egypt's defection and might be willing to sacrifice some principle in return for finding a meaningful counterweight.

Libya's Col. Moammar Qadhafi is reported anxious to recruit Iraq if only to have another regime share the financial burden which the hardliners feel they must bear to make themselves credible.

But their most immediate concern was keeping Jordan out of the peace process — and thus frustrating the Camp David agreement's plans for a West Bank settlement.

As distasteful as the Palestine Liberation Organization finds the new 11-year-old Israeli military occupation of the West Bank and Gaza, that condition in their eyes is preferable to the proffered Camp David deal which would exclude the organization and rule out an independent Palestinian state forever.

Death Toll Rises To 25,000 in Iran Earthquake

TABAS, Iran, Sept. 21 (UPI) — Rescue officials said today after checking population records that the death toll in last Saturday's earthquake in this town and nearby villages has risen to 25,000. The death count mentioned by officials earlier was 16,000.

Officials of the Red Lion and Sun Society, Iran's equivalent of the Red Cross, said that only 1,800 residents of Tabas survived the earthquake. That would account for 15,200 deaths in the city according to a 1975 census count of 17,000 residents.

"We must also take into account visitors from Mashhad, the nearest major city, where many bread-eaters for Tabas families lived and worked, plus a population increase [since the last census]," officials said. They said that they could not give a specific estimate of the two categories of victims.

Another 10,000 people died in 100 villages hit by the earthquake, the officials said. Tabas is near the Afghanistan border; there has been no word of casualties in Afghanistan.

Officials said that rescue parties recovered a 1-year-old child and three other persons from the rubble today but said that they had no other details of the survivors.

Mrs. Meir Hospitalized

TEL AVIV, Sept. 21 (AP) — Former Prime Minister Golda Meir, 80, troubled by a back ailment yesterday entered Jerusalem's Hadassah Hospital for three days of treatment, an aide said today.

Heart Surgery

King Khalid will fly to the Cleveland area next week for major heart surgery, officials aboard the plane carrying U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said today. The surgery, expected to take place late next week, was set up well in advance of the Camp David meeting and had been kept secret at the request of the Saudis.

Tomorrow, the Muslim religious day, there will be no formal negotiations except for a "working lunch" between Mr. Vance and Prince Sultan.

On Saturday, Mr. Vance is scheduled to go to Damascus, where he has no real hope of convincing President Hafez al-Assad to support the Camp David agreements.

Mr. Assad, while hosting a meeting of Arab hardliners, denounced the agreement in harsh terms, even charging that Egypt and Israel were preparing a military attack on Syria.

However, the fact that Mr. Assad is receiving Mr. Vance is seen to be a small triumph and U.S. officials hope that the Syrian president is playing a waiting game, watching to see how the negotiations progress before he burns his last bridges to the moderate Arab world.

In Rabat, Moroccan officials said that King Hassan was in contact with King Khalid.

Warning Planes to Offset Israel's Return of Sinai

By George C. Wilson

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (WP) — Israel now has a fleet of highly sophisticated warning planes, with crews trained in the United States, to help offset the coming loss of the Sinai between Tel Aviv and the Suez Canal.

These planes, the fourth of which was delivered by the United States to Israel last month, are part of an arsenal that is expected to grow because of the Camp David peace agreements.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown plans to travel to Jerusalem and Cairo in January to discuss with defense officials there the requests for additional U.S. weaponry. Pentagon officials said that it would be the first such trip by a U.S. defense secretary. Mr. Brown had announced before the Camp David summit his intention to make the trip.

Israel and Egypt had submitted extensive requests for U.S. weaponry to the Carter administration before the peace agreements were reached and they are expected to argue now that the loss of the Sinai buffer zone makes their requests more urgent than ever.

Israel and Egypt had submitted extensive requests for U.S. weaponry to the Carter administration before the peace agreements were reached and they are expected to argue now that the loss of the Sinai buffer zone makes their requests more urgent than ever.

U.S. Pays for Bases

President Carter during the Egyptian-Israeli peace negotiations committed the United States to putting up the money for two new Israeli air bases in the Negev Desert to make up for the ones to be lost by returning the Sinai to Egypt.

Pentagon spokesman Thomas Ross said Tuesday that these bases probably will cost between $300 million and $1 billion each, estimates that he said are "very preliminary."

"We would compensate the Israelis for their withdrawal" from their Sinai air bases at El Arish on the northern coast of the desert and at Eilat at the head of the Gulf of Aqaba, Mr. Ross said. He said Israel probably will build those bases itself.

As for items Israel has requested, Mr. Ross said that the Carter administration is "proceeding with consideration" of the 10-year, $13.5-billion package on file. "There has been no change," he added.

Israel and Egypt hope to get more U.S. tanks, armored personnel carriers and anti-armor weapons. Pentagon officials said that while Israel is now stronger militarily than ever, Egypt is still weak in its air and ground forces.

In that sense, Pentagon specialists said, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace negotiations were "a desperation effort" to push back the possibility of again having to fight Israel.

The 50 F-15 fighter-bombers that Mr. Carter has promised to deliver to Egypt, even if they were used against Israel with the 60 F-15 fighters that are going to Sinai Arabia, are not considered by Pentagon specialists as a match for the sophisticated plane that Israel has received from the United States under a $170-million deal to provide aerial superiority. No other foreign country has this plane, the Phantom E-2C Hawkeye.

Carrying two pilots three operators of the sophisticated electronic equipment, the Hawkeye could detect with its radar an Egyptian F-15 while that fighter was still 130 to 200 miles away.

Radar Detection

Other equipment aboard the Hawkeye would tell the crew the course and speed of the plane, information that would be sent in code to ground commanders, and its passive detection system can detect another plane's radar emission from about 400 miles away.

Each of the four Hawkeyes in the Israeli Air Force is designed to direct fighter-plane attacks against 30 enemy aircraft while keeping radar track of hundreds of others.

Stepped-up aerial patrols plus ground monitoring stations like the ones now in the Sinai are expected to be part of the Israeli military response to the limited borders under the peace agreements.

However, Carter administration officials insist that there is no intention of putting any kind of U.S. military presence in Israel. Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Tuesday that, despite no provisions for such bases in the peace agreements, a U.S. military presence would be welcome.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, summarizing Mr. Begin's testimony, said that he had said, "We would be welcome at Haifa if we wanted to establish a naval installation there. We would be welcome in the Sinai, if we were interested in establishing an air base there, of course with the permission of the Egyptians."

Mosquito-Bite Fever Kills 15 in Honduras

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Sept. 21 (AP) — The worst epidemic of dengue fever in Honduran history has left 15 dead in three months, health authorities said yesterday. More than 120,000 persons have been treated for the fever, which is caused by mosquito bites.

The Health Department said that the danger persisted despite a $1 million fumigation campaign, because a hurricane, which dumped torrential rain on the northern coast Monday night, left many low-lying areas flooded, and stagnant water is an ideal mosquito breeding ground.

about $250 million in military and economic assistance every year.

But Saudi Arabia, in special projects, contributes almost as much in aid. Last year, the Saudis financed a $540-million sale of a Hawk missile air defense system.

If Mr. Vance can convince the Saudi leadership to support the Camp David accord, or at least stay neutral, it would open the way for Jordan to enter the negotiations on the future of the West Bank.

The Camp David framework calls for tripartite responsibility for the West Bank between Jordan, Israel and the local inhabitants of the West Bank.

In Riyadh, Mr. Vance was met at the airport by Prince Sultan, the defense minister, and then went immediately to the royal palace to visit King Khalid.

stant touch with King Khalid and King Hussein.

The officials said that King Hassan apparently has not made up his own mind, and was trying to coordinate his attitude with those of Kings Khalid and Hussein.

Iraqi Rejection

In Beirut, meanwhile, Iraqi Foreign Minister Saadoun Hamadi summoned Arab ambassadors in Baghdad today and informed them of Iraq's rejection of the Camp David agreement, the Iraqi News Agency said.

The United Arab Emirates today joined the three other Gulf states in expressing strong reservations about the Camp David accord.

An official statement issued at the end of a Cabinet session, chaired by Vice President Sheikh Rashid Ben Said Al Maktoum, said that the U.S.-sponsored Egyptian-Israeli peace documents "do not offer just and final solutions" to the Arab-Israeli conflict.

Israel Halts Settler Bid

but more Gush Emunim members slipped past guards onto the site. Israeli television showed soldiers tackling other sympathizers who tried to run up the mountain.

Defense Minister Ezer Weizman and the army chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, visited the site yesterday to try to persuade the group to leave. Today, the radio reported that the settlers had agreed to an offer by Gen. Eytan to move into a nearby army camp, but Mr. Weizman vetoed this.

The government apparently wanted to avoid a confrontation similar to violent clashes between the Gush Emunim and the Labor government of former Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin three years ago. The 1975 settlement attempts touched off Arab riots in the West Bank.

Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan today called the latest incident an internal Israeli problem and said it would have no effect on negotiations with the Arabs. He said that the government would stand firm against unauthorized settlement attempts.

Mr. Dayan also said that Israel would insist on the permanent right of Israelis to buy land and build Jewish settlements in the West Bank as part of a peace settlement on its eastern front.

From his bubble, David puckers up as his sister and mother blow out candles on his birthday cake.

David Kept in Sterile Bubble Since Birth

A 7-Year-Old's Special Birthday Party

By Linda Gillan

HOUSTON, Sept. 21 — David's seventh birthday is today and he will have lots of presents to unwrap — a dart gun, snap-together blocks, and a Six Million Dollar Man doll. His playmates and family will gather at his home to celebrate with a dinner of David's favorite food — spaghetti and a chocolate cake.

But David will not be able to blow out the candles on his cake. He will only get to see them through the plastic wall of the sterile bubble where he has spent his life.

David, whose last name has never been revealed, has a rare disease known as severe combined immunodeficiency. He is the oldest survivor of perhaps only five children of an estimated 100 born with the blood disorder. His body is unable to fight off even the most common germs.

Since he was placed in sterile isolation at birth, David has never experienced a sick day in his life, but doctors say that at present there is no treatment for him. They think, however, that by studying his case they may discover clues to combating such diseases as cancer.

"Let me stress that David is not an experiment," said Dr. William Shearer, an expert on immunology who is the boy's primary physician at Texas Children's Hospital in Houston. "If we try something, there will have to be a very reasonable chance of success."

Special Spaceman

David has had a big year since his last birthday. He has ventured into the outside world for the first time in a spacesuit developed for him by the Johnson Space Center.

He has learned to read, has taken art lessons, and was entered in the first grade this fall. After he lost his first tooth, David found sterile toys under his pillow. But when his last tooth came out, he requested a dollar bill like the one his sister, Katherine, received.

While his birthday guests eat chocolate cake, David will eat a smaller, sterile chocolate-chip cake.

Kremlin Takes Citizenship

From Zinoviev

MOSCOW, Sept. 21 (AP) — Alexander Zinoviev, a professor of logic and writer of satirical novels who emigrated last month, has been stripped of his Soviet citizenship, according to official documents published yesterday.

In a Supreme Soviet resolution signed by President Leonid Brezhnev, Prof. Zinoviev was accused of behavior "damaging to Soviet prestige."

His novel "The Yawning Heights," which has been published in the West, satirizes life in the Soviet Union.

Prof. Zinoviev, 56, his wife Olga, 33, and their 7-year-old daughter, Polina, left the Soviet Union Aug. 6. He said he would take a teaching post at the University of Munich and lecture at British and American universities.

The action against him is the same as that earlier this year against former Maj. Gen. Pyotr Grigorenko and colist Mstislav Rostropovich, both in the United States.

inside his bubble while he opens presents that were sterilized and wrapped at the hospital.

Since David has grown so much in the last year — he is now 46½ inches tall and weighs 45 pounds — he is unable to fit into his spacesuit and will have to forego any outside excursions until National Aeronautics and Space Administration engineers can complete a new one.

He divides his time between the hospital and the isolation unit at his home. The unit fills the family den. Teachers and students visit him there and if he is not ready to go to work when his teacher arrives, he is marked tardy.

"He's really just like any normal boy," said his nurse, Bryna Holcombe. "He protests having haircuts, he loves Wonder Woman, and sometimes he has to have his mother help him with his bath."

Although David is not allowed to have soap, he sponges off with sterile water. "I don't know how he does it," Mrs. Holcombe said, "but like any boy he manages to get dirt from somewhere."

Hashish Haul Found On Dutch Beaches

THE HAGUE, Sept. 21 (AP) — About 400 kilograms of hashish was found washed up on beaches near the Hook of Holland earlier this week, police said today.

They said they believe that the hashish, which was packed in tins and sacks, was dumped by a vessel that had docked unexpectedly in rough weather, and that a customs check had been feared.

By Charles R. Babcock

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (WP) — White House officials tried yesterday to put the most innocent interpretation on the cryptic, handwritten note that has landed President Carter in the middle of a controversy over efforts to get the administration to settle the legal problems of fugitive financier Robert Vesco.

The Carter message to Attorney General Griffin Bell — "Please see Spencer Lee from Albany when he requests an appointment" — was written during a brief, Feb. 15, 1977, meeting with aide Richard Hadden. During that meeting Mr. Hadden told Mr. Carter that Mr. Lee was "offered a large sum of money" to arrange a meeting for Vesco associates with top White House aide Hamilton Jordan, but that Mr. Lee dropped the idea.

White House spokesman Rex Graham acknowledged yesterday that the note "could have been construed as encouragement" for the Vesco scheme. And officials said they could not explain why the president did not mention Mr. Vesco's name in the note because Mr. Carter did not remember the meeting.

But from talking to Mr. Hadden, officials said, it appeared that the president wrote Mr. Bell to steer any future discussion of the Vesco matter to proper authorities in the Justice Department. "He wanted it out of the White House," a top aide said.

But Mr. Bell said he never got the note. Mr. Lee never called for the appointment, and until recently no one investigated the possibly improper approaches.

Mr. Vesco, who has been living in Costa Rica and more recently the Bahamas, faces federal criminal charges that he looted a publicly owned company and then tried to buy his way out of trouble by giving $200,000 to the Nixon campaign in 1972.

Mr. Lee has said he was offered $1 million to set up a meeting for Mr. Vesco representatives with his hometown friend Mr. Jordan, but he said he was talked out of the idea by Mr. Hadden, another friend and a Jordan assistant.

White House officials noted with irony that Mr. Hadden has said he "protected" Mr. Jordan by not telling him about the Lee approach, but had involved the president instead.

Carter aides also said that Mr. Hadden should have told other White House advisers — not the president — about Mr. Lee's deal with Mr. Vesco. But they said it was early in the administration and procedures for talking to Mr. Carter were informal, as they had been when Mr. Hadden worked in the Georgia state government.

Mr. Hadden was questioned last week by the FBI in connection with the Lee approach, an official said. He added he assumed the president would be questioned too.

Securities and Exchange Commission attorneys who have been trying to protect the assets of Mr. Vesco's former company have expressed interest in the White House approaches. But SEC officials declined comment yesterday on whether they would seek to question Mr. Hadden, Mr. Carter and other administration aides about the matter.

The White House disclosed the president's knowledge of the Vesco approach only after Mr. Lee filed an affidavit with the SEC expanding on earlier testimony to say that Mr. Hadden had discussed the matter with Mr. Carter.

White House officials acknowledged that the Carter note, the latest twist in the Vesco dispute, leaves the administration in an awkward situation because it raises questions about why the president did not say anything to Mr. Bell about Mr. Vesco or order an investigation.

Karpov Obtains Delay in Match

BAGUIO, Philippines, Sept. 21 (AP) — An airplane buzzed world chess champion Anatoly Karpov's hotel this morning, and an official of the World Chess Championship said he thought that was why Mr. Karpov postponed the scheduled 25th game a few hours later.

The tournament official, who asked not to be identified, said that an unidentified twin-engine airplane made several passes near Mr. Karpov's hotel at about 9 a.m., when Mr. Karpov generally is asleep.

The postponement was Mr. Karpov's third in the match, which he leads four games to two, with 18 draws. The 25th game is now scheduled for Saturday night, with challenger Viktor Korchnoi enjoying a theoretical advantage playing white.

Crawford Files Moscow Appeal

CHICAGO, Sept. 21 (AP) — Francis Crawford, the International Harvester Co. representative convicted in the Soviet Union of violating currency laws, has filed an appeal with the Moscow court, the firm says.

Mr. Crawford, 37, was found guilty Sept. 7 of buying rubles on the black market. He was given a five-year suspended prison term by Judge Lev Mironov.

An International Harvester spokesman says that Mr. Crawford, who returned to the United States two days after his conviction, filed the appeal within the seven-day limit set by the judge. The matter presumably was handled by Leonid Popov, the lawyer who represented Mr. Crawford at his trial, the company said.

Guerrilla Raids Draw Warning In El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, Sept. 21 (UPI) — The government of El Salvador threatened to suspend the constitution and ordered a nationwide search today for guerrillas who killed two policemen and attacked the rector of the national university here.

Defense Minister Federico Castillo Yanes ordered a nationwide search for the attackers and warned that if guerrilla activity continued, "the government could decide to suspend constitutional guarantees or declare a state of siege."

The two policemen were killed and several others wounded in an attack on their patrol car yesterday on the edge of the city. An anonymous caller told the press that the attack was the work of the leftist Armed Forces of National Resistance, "in proletarian solidarity with the Sandinistas of Nicaragua."

Inside the city, three guerrillas fired on the chauffeur-driven car of the university rector, Manuel Antonio Ramirez. Two policemen exchanged fire with the guerrillas, killing one and wounding another, a woman. The third escaped.

Two days before, terrorists had killed the dean of the university's school of economics, Carlos Rodriguez, and two university guards.

'Hang-Up Over Trains'California Man Arrested After Locomotive Joyride

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 21 — Running toy trains apparently was not satisfying enough for Henry Wendell, so he decided to try the real thing and landed in jail.

Mr. Wendell, 31, from North Hollywood, described as having "a hang-up over trains," was arrested near Saugus, northwest of here, for switching a switch engine and taking it on a 25-mile joyride.

According to police, Mr. Wendell stole keys to the Southern Pacific Railroad locomotive and to some switchboxes and then took the engine from the San Fernando depot.

He was running free and undetected on the Southern Pacific's main line until he got to the Saugus depot about an hour later. There, a shocked telegrapher, Dale Van Camp, saw the unexpected engine.

Confident, Knowledgeable

Authorities said that Mr. Wendell appeared to be quite confident that he could go anywhere he wanted to with the engine, and that he seemed to know railroad regulations.

He told them that he knew enough to take the engine onto a spur line if he saw a yellow light warning of an oncoming train.

He also turned on a revolving red light to warn any other engine that he was on the track, and he knew how to operate the track switchboxes.

He seemed to be aware of the Southern Pacific schedule, because there was no other traffic on the line at the times he took the engines.

Even so, when the telegrapher at Saugus spotted Mr. Wendell and the switch engine, he issued a warning and a northbound freight train was stopped at Burbank, 20 miles away.

Radiator Repairman

Sheriff's officers said that Mr. Wendell was a radiator repairman, single, and lived alone. There was no sign that he had been drinking or that he had taken drugs when arrested, they said.

The authorities said that two keys were required to start the engine. Mr. Wendell apparently obtained the first by breaking into a Southern Pacific office at the San Fernando depot last week. He apparently took the second key from an engine that was being dismantled in a nearby railroad yard, police officials said.

The second key can be used on any switch engine, they said. Mr. Wendell was booked on suspicion of grand theft. If convicted he could be sentenced to a maximum of 10 years in state prison.

Roman Is Shot.Going to School

ROME, Sept. 21 (UPI) — An 18-year-old youth was fatally shot on his way to school today in Rome.

Police said witnesses reported that two young men fired at the youth as he left a bus near the school. The victim died shortly after being taken to a hospital. The attackers fled.

Police said that they believed the shooting was the latest incident in a series of political acts of violence that began when students returned to school Tuesday after the summer vacation.

BABY BLIMP — With time on his hands when he went into semiretirement, Saul Slater, 73, decided four years ago he wanted a flying machine. He built a 19-foot blimp and sold it to the Navy after he showed it would hover motionless. His next project will be a 110-foot version.

Conviction of Farber Is UpheldTimes Reporter Ordered Back to Jail

TRENTON, N.J., Sept. 21 (UPI) — The New Jersey Supreme Court today ordered New York Times reporter Myron Farber back to jail for refusing to turn over his notes in Dr. Mario Jascovich's murder trial.

In a 5-to-2 decision, the court upheld Mr. Farber's contempt of court conviction and the newspaper's $5,000-a-day fine.

Writing for the court, Associate Justice Worrall Mountain ordered Mr. Farber to surrender at the Bergen County jail Tuesday at 4 p.m.

Appeal Expected

Mr. Farber and Times attorneys were expected to appeal the order to the federal courts.

Mr. Farber spent 27 days in jail after he was convicted of civil and criminal contempt charges for refusing to turn over files on Dr. Jascovich, an Argentine-born surgeon on trial for murdering three patients with overdoses of curare. The state's highest court freed Mr. Farber in August.

The reporter wrote a series of articles in 1976 which led Bergen

U.K. Says Proll Married Briton

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP) — Astrid Proll, in jail here and wanted by West Germany as an alleged past member of the Baader-Meinhof terrorist gang, married a Briton while living in London, the Home Office confirmed yesterday.

Miss Proll is in London's Brixton prison after being arrested last Friday in a surprise raid on a Loodoo car-repair garage.

An official said he did not think that the marriage would affect moves to have her extradited, since marriage "does not automatically confer British citizenship." The West German government wants Miss Proll to stand trial for alleged involvement in the attempted murders of two policemen.

British press reports said that Miss Proll, 31, used a false name to marry a 30-year-old Loodoo plumber in 1975, 11 months after she fled West Germany. Reports named the husband as Robin Puttick, now reportedly studying religion in India.

Rickover Blasts Builder For Submarine Overruns

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (UPI) — In his latest salvo fired against the Electric Boat division of General Dynamics, Adm. Hyman Rickover claims that "no private citizen would tolerate" the kind of treatment the Navy has been getting from that shipbuilder.

"The time has come to draw the line with General Dynamics," Adm. Rickover wrote his Navy superiors in a Sept. 8 memo obtained by The Washington Post.

He complained about "greatly inflated" charges the company planned to levy against the Navy for replacing valves on one of the nuclear attack submarines that Electric Boat is building, declaring:

"The traditional customer-seller relationship is being turned on its head. Services which the Navy has the right to expect from Electric Boat under the contract are no longer being rendered. The situation is analogous to a man having to accept an ill-fitting suit of clothes because his tailor insists on charging an outrageous price for moving a button."

Carter administration officials have said that they want to give Electric Boat $484 million to settle the dispute on contract for 18 SSN-688 nuclear-attack submarines. They also propose paying Litton Industries' Ingalls Shipbuilding Division $447 million for overruns in a contract for 5 LHA assault ships and 30 Spruance Class destroyers.

Electric Boat steadfastly has denied that it has been inflating its bills for Navy work. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who is trying to forbid the Navy from using a streamlined procedure called 85-804 to pay bills filed by Electric Boat and other shipbuilders, has cited Adm. Rickover's charges in making his case.

Although the deadline for passing a congressional resolution to forbid paying claims under 85-804 passed yesterday, Sen. Proxmire intends to put the question to a Senate floor vote by sponsoring an amendment to deny the Navy money authorized for paying back shipbuilder bills. Rep. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y., plans to make a similar attempt in the House.

Pamplona to Resume Running of the Bulls

PAMPLONA, Spain, Sept. 21 (AP) — The annual running of the bulls celebration, disrupted by political violence in July, will be resumed Saturday through Tuesday.

City officials said the fiesta was being continued to try to make up for the heavy losses that organizers, hotels, shops and other businesses suffered. The celebrations were called off July 11, two days after police stormed into the bullring and fired into the crowd in an effort to break up a nationalist demonstration.

Low-Tar Brand Bridges Flavor Gap.

"Enriched Flavor" breakthrough leads to unprecedented taste in a low-tar cigarette, MERIT.

A major advance in smoking technology has effectively bridged the gap between low tar and taste.

The breakthrough—a process called "Enriched Flavor" has made possible a remarkable new cigarette, Merit.

A cigarette which is establishing a whole new taste standard for low tar smoking.

"Enriched Flavor"

More than 2000 components of tobacco smoke were analysed one by one. Researchers succeeded in isolating certain natural ingredients which deliver taste way out of proportion to tar.

By packing extra quantities of these "key" flavor-rich ingredients into a low tar cigarette, Merit was created.

Taste Tests confirm it.

Merit has now been taste-tested among many thousands of smokers in Europe and the U.S.A.

A significant majority of smokers reported Merit delivered as much—or more—flavor as cigarettes bearing up to 60% more tar.

You've been listening to low tar/good taste claims for long enough. Now smoke the cigarette that finally gets them together.

Truly satisfying smoking and low tar too. The cigarette is Merit.

Preliminary Study Indicates

Space Flight May Reduce Normal Bone Formation

By Harold M. Schmeck Jr.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (NYT) — The first two Soviet spacecraft to carry U.S. scientific experiments have brought back unexpected data indicating that prolonged weightlessness may reduce, or perhaps even halt, normal bone formation.

The effect was seen in rats kept in orbit more than 19 days. The problem is considered one of the most perplexing that humans face in long-duration flights beyond earth. From the earliest days of manned space flight, scientists have known that bones lost substance during prolonged flights. This appeared to result from a process called resorption — a leaching of minerals from bone into body fluids.

The same effect occurs in persons immobilized in bed a long time. It is thought to result from lack of exercise, but even vigorous exercise by space flight crews has not eliminated the bone loss. The new data shows that in animals, bone resorption is not the entire problem. There is actual reduction of bone formation. The animals recovered their ability to form bone after returning to earth's surface and the normal pull of gravity.

Totally Unexpected

This discovery, which one U.S. scientist described as "totally unexpected," would seem to add a new dimension to the problem of how humans can cope with the space environment during long-term exploration and residence in outer space stations.

The new findings were reported in the Sept. 22 issue of Science, weekly journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The authors were Dr. Emily Morey of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and Dr. David Baylink of the University of Washington in Seattle.

Their experiments were with rats kept in orbit for nearly three weeks in two unmanned Soviet spacecraft. The first was Cosmos-782, put in orbit nearly three years ago, and Cosmos-936, launched early in August 1977 and recovered late the same month.

Dr. Morey, a specialist in bone-growth research at the biomedical research division of NASA's Ames Research Center in California, said the results of the two sets of experiments had been virtually identical.

Data Is Preliminary

She noted that the new data were preliminary and in animals rather than man, but she also said there were similarities between the behavior of bone in rats and humans. The data from the two Soviet biological research satellites does not make clear whether the reduction in bone formation reflects a gradual decrease or a complete stoppage at some point.

As to the potential significance of the studies, Dr. Morey said it had been thought that the prime effect of weightlessness was bone resorption, not a reduction in bone formation.

"If one wants to treat any type of disease, one must know what the cause is," she said in an interview. There are drugs that are very good in treating resorption but very few that are effective in treating failure of formation, she added.

At present the fate of human bone during space flight is a puzzle for planners of future exploration. It may be that "turnover" of bone would stabilize over a very long time and therefore not represent a significant health problem. To date, however, there is no conclusive evidence that such stabilization occurs, even after two months in orbit.

If bone loss continued indefinitely, the effects on astronauts' health might be disastrous.

Work in Shipyards Tied To Higher Cancer Rate

By Jane E. Brody

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (NYT) — Government researchers, seeking an explanation for the high rate of lung cancer deaths in certain coastal areas of the United States, have identified employment in shipyards during World War II as an important factor.

In an article in the current issue of The New England Journal of Medicine, the researchers suggest that exposure to asbestos in the shipyards probably caused the excess number of lung cancer cases. In addition, the researchers showed, those who worked in shipyards and also smoked cigarettes faced an unusually high risk of developing cancer.

The researchers studied 458 persons who developed lung cancer during the 1970s in three coastal cities of Georgia, where the lung cancer death rate exceeds the national average by about 30 percent. When the lung cancer patients were compared to 553 persons with other medical problems, it was found that a predominance of lung cancer patients had worked in Georgia shipyards, most for just a few years during the war.

Risk Higher

The risk of developing lung cancer was found to be 60 percent higher among the shipyard workers, when other factors such as

57 Cholera Deaths

Reported in Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia, Sept. 21 (AP) — Fifty-seven persons have died of cholera in Malaysia since an outbreak early this year, the director of health services, Dr. Abdul Talib Latiff, said yesterday.

He said that a total of 1,438 cases and 1,504 carriers have been reported in the same period. At the moment, only Johore, Perak and Kelantan states are affected by the disease.

Doctor Solves Paternity Puzzle: 2 Fathers, 1 Mother Equal Twins

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 21 (AP) — The birth of twins, doctors say, is an 80-to-1 longshot. But twins were born in California recently under circumstances that had been chronicled only seven times before: Each child was fathered by a different man.

The case became known because the twins' mother filed a paternity lawsuit against one of the men. To obtain evidence against him, the woman consulted Dr. Paul Terasaki, a University of California-Los Angeles immunologist who uses an advanced tissue-typing system to determine fatherhood.

Since developing his method, Dr. Terasaki has used it to settle more than 2,500 paternity cases. This one seemed routine. He matched the man's tissue fingerprints, identifying keys called antigens found in the white blood cells, with one of the twins. But the antigens of the second twin did not match.

Usually, twins are formed when two eggs are released simultaneously from the ovaries and fertilized by sperm released during the same sex act. But in the phenomenon of twins having different fathers, called superfecundity, the eggs are released hours apart during separate acts of intercourse.

Since the odds against his system being wrong were 140,000 to 1, Dr. Terasaki said yesterday, he decided to determine whether two men had fathered the twins. Dr. Terasaki asked the woman if she had had intercourse with another man at about the time that she thought she had conceived. She admitted she had.

The antigens of the second man matched the antigens of the second twin.

"She accepted the possibility [of double fatherhood] readily," Dr. Terasaki said.

The case has been dropped, he said, and the mother has resolved the child support case — one of the fathers is supporting both children.

N.Y. Study Says Red Tape Adds 25% to Hospital Bill

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (UPI) —

The cost of complying with regulations from 164 government agencies in the state of New York accounts for one fourth of a patient's hospital bill, the Hospital Association of New York disclosed yesterday.

One year, that amounts to $1.1 billion of the state's acute-care hospital bill of $4.4 billion.

Association President George Allen said the study, the first large-scale one carried out in the United States, indicates that the cost of complying with regulations must add to hospital bills everywhere in the country. Fifty-two percent of the 309 acute-care hospitals in the state participated.

Mr. Allen said that the association is asking Gov. Hugh Carey to study the regulation superstructure spawned by state regulations.

The association also intends to ask Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph Califano Jr. to look at the cost of excessive federal regulation and the paperwork connected with it as a factor in boosting hospital bills.

Mr. Califano has attacked "hosted hospital bills" and called hospitals obese. How much of the fat comes from overlapping paperwork connected with duplicative regulations has not been calculated.

Just One Side of Coin

Mr. Allen suspects that the cost of regulations is just one side of the coin. "Each regulatory agency has its set of auditors, clerks, analysts and office support system," he said. In addition, the inspection teams have travel expenses.

Mr. Allen estimated that 115 million man hours a year are spent on the filling out and filing of forms required of hospitals in the association.

"That is the equivalent of 56,000 hospital employees, enough to staff 75 hospitals of 250 beds each."

Dr. Carol McCarthy, who directed the study, said the hospitals acknowledge that some regulation is necessary but that there is a tremendous amount of overlapping

Etienne Gilson, Philosopher, Dies in France

CRAVANT, France, Sept. 21 (AP) — French academician and philosopher Etienne Gilson, 94, died here Tuesday, friends reported today.

Prof. Gilson was primarily regarded as one of France's leading authorities on medieval philosophy, although his academic interests encompassed medieval art, culture and society.

His dozens of books, on Thomas Aquinas, Augustine and other philosophers, established his reputation internationally. After World War I, he taught briefly at Harvard University and later was visiting professor at the University of Toronto. Oxford University conferred one of several honorary degrees on Prof. Gilson.

He was elected a member of the French Academy in 1946 and was its oldest member at his death.

In a 40-Family Experiment

Untouchables to Integrate in Indian Colony for Poor

By Kasuri Rangan

TIRUCHITRAMBALAM, India (NYT) — Palani is an untouchable and Ezhumalai is a sudra — a low Hindu caste — yet they are going to be neighbors in a new colony going up outside this village, 90 miles south of Madras.

When they move there along with 40 other families, they will be breaking a tradition dating back generations, and doing what until today had not been possible in Tiruchitrambalam.

Like most of India's 600,000 villages, this one observes strict segregation between untouchables and other Hindus. The untouchables live in a slum outside the village. They cannot share the same well for drinking water with the caste Hindus, nor even the same cremation ground to burn their dead.

In the new hamlet, however, there will be mixed living. Promoted by private philanthropy with the support of the local government, this hamlet will be an experiment aimed at removing untouchability.

Different Shams

"We are both poor," said Ezhumalai. He said that he did not mind living alongside an untouchable. "In the village we live in different shams. Our homes are old and cannot stand a strong wind or rain. We don't have any money to build new homes."

The two are among candidates selected on the basis of destitution for the allotment of free huts.

The huts of the new hamlet are made of mud walls, bamboo props and a thick layer of hay for the roofs. They are more sturdy and slightly than the rickety homes in the village, which are little more than thatched coconut leaves around a central pole.

The new huts have separate enclosures for cooking. Not far away there is a well with potable water and a pump. In the village, the only drinkable water is inside a temple exclusively used by Brahmins and other upper-caste Hindus.

Ramu Selvaraj, the supervisor of the new project, said that each of the new huts cost about $100.

Contrary to popular belief, many wealthy and educated upper-caste Hindus in the cities are as keen as the government to abolish untouchability. "It's only in the villages that the barrier between caste Hindus and untouchables persists,"

Mr. Selvaraj said. "Lack of education and superstition are the reasons."

Caste consciousness is less strong in the younger generation, which helps explain Ezhumalai's readiness to live alongside Palani. Neither is yet 30 years old.

The untouchables, who form about 15 percent of India's 630 million population, have traditionally done the dirty and low-paying jobs. They are sweepers, cobblers and hired laborers. Although "unclean" jobs are still the preserve of the untouchables, large numbers of lower-caste Hindus are taking up menial jobs, particularly the tiling of the land.

Ezhumalai and Palani are both landless laborers who earn a daily wage of 50 cents when work is available. But they are sure of work in the fields only three months a year. The rest of the time they go out to the towns seeking jobs as coolies — repairing roads or carrying loads.

Russia Expands Ethiopian Links

NAIROBI, Sept. 21 (AP) — Ethiopia and the Soviet Union have signed new economic agreements designed to cement relations between them, Addis Ababa radio said today.

First Vice President Vasil Kuznetsov signed for the Soviet Union shortly before leaving for home yesterday after an eight-day visit, the radio said.

Mr. Kuznetsov, who conferred with Lt. Col. Mengistu Haile Mariam, the Ethiopian leader, was quoted as saying that the Ethiopian military revolution had reached "a reliable stage."

Brazil Officials Deny Bonn Will End A-accord

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 21 (UPI) — Five Cabinet ministers, supported by political leaders, have denied allegations by the West German magazine Der Spiegel that Bonn plans to abrogate an $8 billion German-Brazilian nuclear power agreement because of technical questions, security problems and possible fraud.

Foreign Minister Antonio Azeredo da Silveira denied that West Germany planned to renounce the pact, and Mines and Energy Minister Shigenki Ueki said "the accord with Germany will be carried out."

The two nations signed an agreement in 1975 whereby West Germany agreed to transfer nuclear technology to Brazil, including eight nuclear power plants and fuel-reprocessing equipment.

Der Spiegel charged that construction costs have risen while millions of dollars destined for payment to West German firms have disappeared. It said that two ministers have steered contracts to firms they were involved in and that the power plants presented technological and radioactive risks.

The privilege of being a BMW driver in a new way

In buying a BMW you can expect to acquire a car which is a confirmation of your critical and rational outlook. Especially if your sense of discrimination demands a vehicle which combines outstanding performance and technical refinement with a compact format and confident, discreet styling.

The BMW 320 and 323i give new force to the BMW concept of a compact luxury car. They have the exceptional mechanical refinement of the big BMWs combined with

Theater in Paris

Playwrights Charter Wells' Time Machine

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss

PARIS, Sept. 21 (IHT) — Pierre Barillet and Jean-Pierre Gredy are certified authors of modern French comedy, holding a place in the contemporary theater analogous to that of the brilliant Flers and Caillavet during La Belle Époque. Together they have devised a host of Parisian hits, two of which — "Cactus Flower" and "40 Carats" — subsequently prospered on Broadway and re-emerged as million-dollar Hollywood movies. Deft show-stopping manipulators, they have also adapted many plays from the American and the English, lighting their way to success in France. It is always reassuring to find their signature on a poster.

Their latest collaboration, "Le Prefere," has just opened at the Theatre de la Madeleine. It begins brightly aboard an airplane with a gregarious man and an uptight woman passenger forced into conversation by a thunderstorm rocking their conveyance. After this promising start in the best Barillet-Gredy manner, we land on quicksand, being faced with an unrelated and trite intrigue, the venerable standby about the high-living, wayward father who, returning after a long absence, fascinates his 20-year-old daughter and wins back his former wife.

Barillet and Gredy once composed a film script for Rene Clair, "Les Belles de Nuit," in which a young couple, disgusted with the crass present, were magically wafted back to earlier centuries to discover that things were always much the same. When they reached the Stone Age, they found the Neanderthal men longing for the good old days.

Now these twin playwrights seem to have chartered H.G. Wells' time machine to the past to visit not old days but old plays. Their new work recalls the Duquesnel-Hennequin "Patachon" from the 1900s and "The Bachelor Father" from the twenties. True, the father-daughter relationship is here to stay, but this usually diverting duo have succeeded in very little that is either novel or likely.

Instead of believable people, we have before us a congregation of stereotypes: the gay-dog papa so full of vim that his mere appearance would exhaust any youthful buck; the flapper daughter who despises her tough talk, theories on feminine superiority and illegitimate pregnancy; beneath the surface the regulation Victorian rosebud; her stuffy lover with his snuffy contempt for his elders and his gaffs when met with any social obligation; the nosey ex-wife, an incurable romantic, who conducts her ballet classes like a music-hall comic.

And most of the situations are similarly from the bottom of the theatrical trunk: the telltale Sardou perfume, the overheard conversation that leads to farcical misunderstanding, the late-life reunion of the long-separated husband and wife; the ironing out of the youngsters' problems with the anticipated rainbow ending for all concerned.

"Le Prefere" has been designed as a vehicle for Jean Fiat, an attractive and excellent actor, who takes it in his stride, breezing and beaming through all its improbabilities with aplomb. Though it was cut to order for him, he must have missed its final fittings for not all of it becomes him. The episode in which he is called upon to make faces at a baby in a crib suggests that his tailors temporarily forgot his measurements and had in mind either Jerry Lewis or Louis de Funès. Yet he vaults even this burlesque with his customary nonchalance.

Yolande Folliot, as the daughter, and Judith Magre, as the busybody mother, have been assigned to amuse two preposterous puppets. It is to the actresses' honor that they succeed in stilling the audible mechanical clicking that their roles betray. The part of the flighty wife is intended as a send-up of the inconsistency of the younger generation but is actually an oblique caricature of establishment self-satisfaction.

Michel Roux's direction polices the stage traffic briskly. Amusing lines are scattered here and there and Jean Fiat is in top form. These attributes may bring box-office success, but this new comedy of Barillet and Gredy is far below their par.

'Happy Hearts Club Banned'

A Message From Prague Jazz-Rock Group: Far Away

By Michael Zwerin

PARIS, Sept. 21 (IHT) — "Egon Bondy's Happy Hearts Club Banned," the only recording by the jailed Czech rock group Plastic People of the Universe, has just been released in Western Europe. It is coupled with a 60-page soft-cover book entitled "The Merry Ghetto."

The credits read: "Recorded in Czechoslovakia, produced in France, pressed in Ireland and printed in England." Ten thousand copies each in English and French were produced by the Plastic People's Defense Fund in collaboration with the Parisian leftist newspaper Liberation. The fund is being administered with the assistance of Amnesty International, London.

The package sells for 50 francs (or $5) and will be distributed through normal record channels by Bozi Mlyn Productions, BM 1415, London, WC1V6XX.

The music comes from tapes recorded in 1973 on homemade gear and smuggled out. (The record was released without the group's approval.) The style is reminiscent of Captain Beefheart, The Fugs, The Velvet Underground and most of all, Frank Zappa. However, it is more than a copy.

A Synthesis

Instrumentally, it arrives at a synthesis between jazz and rock on a level rarely attained elsewhere. A simple, gimmickless ground electric bass provides freedom for Jiri Kabes' viola and Vratislav Brabenec's astonishing saxophone, the latter a sort of cross between King Curtis and Albert Ayler. Brabenec is currently working as a gardener in Prague.

The songs, sung in Czech, are more eclectic, related to speech than melody. There are grunts, growls, coughs, reverbs, Gregorian chant imitations, pagan rain dances in odd meters, R and B patterns with tonal rows above them, sometimes voiced in minor seconds or ninths.

The booklet is at least as interesting as the record. It includes the first translations of the poetry of Egon Bondy, a pseudonym for a widely read and influential ("a legend in his own time") underground (samizdat) Czech poet who, a generation older than the musicians, is the Plastic People's primary influence.

There is also a well-translated history of the Plastic People and of the Czech underground in general, an open letter to German writer Heinrich Böll, an article in the official paper Rude Pravo about the Plastic People's trial (entitled "Disturbances of the Peace in the Dock"). There are Charter 77 documents, photos of faces and street life and quotations from Kafka and Mao, who said: "Don't be afraid of consequences."

The recording quality is barely adequate. But lack of sophistication adds to the poignancy. This message seems to be coming from a long way off.

Wine in France

3 Chef-Restaurateurs Talk About Lists

By Jon Winroth

PARIS (IHT) — Why must one be so frequently reduced, even in many of the best restaurants where the chef is also the owner, to nondescript lists of wines from the most predictable and least interesting vineyards?

The food may be very good but the wines totally lack charm, liveliness or personality. Half the pleasure of the meal is destroyed in the wineglass.

Three chef-restaurateurs who are exceptionally good wine-tasters were asked what they thought of this curious situation. Alain Dutoir of Au Trou Gascon, Jean-Pierre Morot-Gaudry, whose restaurant carries his last name, and Robert Vifian of the Tan Dinh are friends precisely because of their common interest in wine and subtle cuisine. The discussion took place the evening of the Tan Dinh's reopening in an elegant new setting on the Rue de Verneuil.

Alain Dutoir: "You have to have a passion for wine. It almost has to be a personal vice. Chefs who don't know wine don't have the cult of the table in any sense. Real subtlety in cooking is as rare among chefs as knowing wine."

Jean-Pierre Morot-Gaudry: "For 25 years after the war the aim of chefs everywhere was to make the same haute cuisine to perfection. They never got out of the kitchen. Today we're looking for something else."

Dutoir: "A lot of chefs still brag about how much they drink, not how many different wines or of what quality they've tasted. On the rare occasions when they do go to the vineyards, they announce that they're from this or that restaurant as if that alone proves how much they know about wine."

Robert Vifian: "My grandfather was already interested in wine but it particularly amused him because no Vietnamese restaurateur had ever gone seriously into wine. The growers may be a little surprised when they first see me, but they don't care who you are if you know how to taste well."

"And it's fun to match wits with them because they always try to get the better of you. That's why it's more of a challenge to buy Burgundy than Bordeaux. You have to hunt around more to find a top-quality wine."

Tasting Sessions

Morot-Gaudry: "I have to agree but then I'm from Burgundy myself! A few years ago Alain and I began tasting wines together. He comes from the southwest of France and he claimed there were no good Burgundies. I told him he was wrong and proved it to him in tasting sessions lasting into the early hours."

Vifian: "As a foreigner, I had to read a lot first and then do my tasting, but it keeps me objective and gives me an overall view. A Frenchman begins by tasting and then reads later."

Dutoir: "As soon as I've put together a new dish, my first question is what wine will go with it. The easy way out for a chef is Beaujolais. It goes with almost anything and it's perfumed."

"But we have two public to satisfy. The average client will not necessarily like the wines that someone with a certain amount of wine culture does. Needless to say, I prefer the second type of client."

Vifian: "A lot of restaurants have a wine list only to justify a Michelin star. They couldn't care less if a wine comes from a good grower or through a representative selling nothing but shippers' wines so long as it has the right appellation controlee."

Morot-Gaudry: "I hate to sell a really good wine to some idiot who insists on ordering it when it's far too young and then tells me it was no good. We have to protect our good wines with easy ones like Beaujolais or Sancerre."

Vifian: "My aim is selfish. My cellar is as much for myself as it is for my clients. I also find it stimulating to be the first Oriental restaurateur with a great wine list. It motivates me to keep searching for new and better wines."

"You often find the same wines from the same representatives in many restaurants. It becomes boring because there are no surprises. If only more restaurateurs, chefs or not, would go to the vineyards and do their own buying, there would be more variety. Among the younger chefs more and more do try to learn wine. It's a question of education, time and laziness whether they do or not."

Morot-Gaudry: "I spend an hour or two a day on wine alone. I have to keep up with new wine articles and books, work in the cellar and receive representatives, whether they interest me or not. And taste with friends. I never taste alone."

Vifian: "Never. I always taste and buy with my brother Fred or another serious wine-taster."

Does that answer why so few chefs are good wine-tasters? At least it shows the passion and effort required to become one. And it helps to explain the sort of cellar filled with 50,000 or so bottles from growers that each of these three chef-restaurateurs has built up.

And if you don't think Vietnamese cooking can go with the best of French wines, you have a pleasant discovery in store.

Solti and the Chicagoans Leave Flashiness at Home

By David Stevens

PARIS, Sept. 21 (IHT) — Nearing the end of their third European tour in seven years, Georg Solti and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra raised the curtain on the Paris concert season last night with a judicious balance of musicianship and virtuosity.

The large, but not capacity, audience at the Palais des Congres welcomed the celebrated Chicagoans with enthusiasm, and got a robust booster shot of Berlioz in return as an encore. But on the whole, last night's concert was not quite a typical tour program — in the sense that tours are usually intended to show off orchestras rather than music. Nor did the orchestra which many think is the best band in the land these days — play with the extroverted flashiness usually associated with American orchestras on this side of the Atlantic.

The program was an interesting pairing of the first symphonies of Beethoven and Mahler, "firsts" by composers who already had their mature characteristics as symphonists firmly in place. Solti gave both works thoughtful and even subdued readings, turning his magnificent orchestra loose only in the finales, Beethoven's exuberantly playful vivace and Mahler's violently stormy conclusion.

The Mahler was particularly impressive, sonorous and spacious in the first movement, with a rough-hewn folk vigor in the second, and a perfectly judged muffled tone for the grotesque funeral march — with some help for once from the vast hall's damped acoustical quality. Despite occasional signs of what might have been road fatigue, the Chicagoans produced some splendidly assured solo playing and, with all eight hornists on their feet for a flawless final fanfare, a knockout finale.

The orchestra gives its 17th and final concert of its 24-day tour tomorrow in London.

U.K. Booklet Gives Advice on Healthy Diet

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP) — Advice to Britons on keeping slim and living longer has been handed out by the government in a booklet on healthy eating.

A diet of more bread, potatoes and fruit, less sugar, alcohol and salt, would reduce heart attacks, diabetes, cut cancer and tooth decay, said the booklet, "Eating for Health."

It advocated more fiber, such as that found in brown bread and porridge.

Alcohol consumption has doubled in the last 20 years, and sugar consumption runs at 95 pounds per person a year, it said.

The booklet, which costs 95 pence, gives suggestions on food, from encouragement of breastfeeding, to helping frail oldsters to peel oranges and potatoes.

EMS 'Ill-Timed'

Dollar Off Sharply;
Gold Equals Record

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP-DJ) — The dollar slumped against the main trading currencies for the second consecutive day in foreign exchange trading today, hitting a new low against the Swiss franc. The price of gold also climbed sharply, finishing near record levels.

The crux of the dollar's dilemma, senior dealers argued, was the ongoing talk about the establishment of an expanded European Monetary System, envisaged to include the currencies of West Germany, the Netherlands, Belgium, Britain, France and Italy. The aim would be to stabilize exchange rates within the Common Market regardless of the gyrations of the dollar.

"The EMS is ill-timed and ill-conceived," asserted one dealer at a major U.S. bank in London. Public disclosure of negotiations means that the market knows the Deutsche mark will have to be revalued against the other European currencies, possibly by 5 percent to 7 percent, he said. This is putting pressure on the dollar because "everybody knows the Deutsche mark is out of line" and anticipating a revaluation, funds are moving into speculative mark positions, he explained.

Disclosure of the initiatives towards the EMS are ill-timed, the dealer said, because it follows on the heels of a lengthy period of dollar depreciation that has made the U.S. currency extremely vulnerable to any adverse developments.

Schmidt Blasts Opposition

Belgian Premier Leo Tindemans said in Tokyo today that the weakening of the dollar has made it impossible for the EEC to come up with a unified currency system. West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt blasted parliamentary opposition to the EMS proposal, saying that "no one could imagine that we would find ourselves in such a disrupted currency system. A Common Market without firm and reliable currency and money relationships for every participant is not tenable on the long run."

Centrals banks in West Germany and Switzerland were believed to have lent the dollar some support. The Dutch and Belgian authorities also acted to keep their currencies within their bands against the Deutsche mark in the joint European monetary float, or snake. The Netherlands central bank apparently sold an estimated 82.5 million DM and the Belgian central bank sold some 1.8 million DM at the Brussels fixing.

Gold at $216

As the dollar fell, gold finished up more than $2 an ounce at $216.25 late today in London, surpassing the morning fixing price of $215.90 an ounce which matched the previous record at the fixing on Aug. 15.

Profit-taking pared the gains in the morning with the afternoon fixing setting gold at $215.65 in quiet trading, but soon recouped the slight loss.

The dollar fell to an intraday record low against the Swiss franc of 1.5123 francs — breaking yesterday's record of 1.5240 francs. It finished the day at 1.5165 francs, down 2.23 centimes, or about 1.4 percent, from late yesterday. So far this week, the dollar has depreciated by 4.6 percent against the Swiss currency.

Against the Deutsche mark, the dollar sank to an intraday bottom of 1.9440 DM when the Bundesbank apparently intervened. Later, it recouped to 1.9520 DM, down 95 points on the day but still above the record low of 1.9138 DM set Aug. 15.

The dollar slumped 1.05 yen to 187.75 Yen. It also lost ground against the guilder, Belgian franc and lira.

Sterling struck a high of $1.9945 before settling at $1.9815, for a gain of 20 points.

The French franc, however, eased against all major currencies, including the dollar, on the apparent belief that its inclusion in a European Monetary System would require a devaluation. The dollar stood at 4.3725 francs versus 4.3668 francs late yesterday.

The Canadian dollar firmed to 85.61 U.S. cents from 85.52 cents.

Canadian Bond
To Aid Dollar,
At 45-Year Low

OTTAWA, Sept. 21 (UPI) — The government moved to protect the Canadian dollar after it hit a 45-year low yesterday, announcing it intends to boost Canada's foreign-currency reserves through a $1.5 billion bond sale in New York.

The announcement came shortly after the Canadian dollar sank below 85.5 U.S. cents. On the interbank market, it closed at 85.43 cents.

In the last month, the Canadian currency has lost 2.7 cents against its U.S. counterpart despite heavy spending by the government to protect the currency and the fourth 0.5-percent increase in the Bank of Canada's interest rate since January.

During August, the government's foreign-currency reserves dropped $711 million as the Bank of Canada bought Canadian dollars to offset the decline in value caused by other selling Canadian currency.

The bond issue in the United States was the second of the year. An earlier U.S. issue last March, the first in 10 years, was also for $750 million.

"Details of the proposed offering will be made available at the time of the filing of the registration statement with the United States Securities and Exchange Commission," the finance department said.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

Braniff to Buy Boeing Aircraft

Braniff International Corp. has agreed to buy 10 Boeing 727-200 aircraft for $149 million and one Boeing 747-200 for $60 million in 1980, Harding Lawrence chairman and chief executive officer says. The airline also has an option which he said he expects it to exercise by mid-December to buy 10 more Boeing 727-200s for $153 million and another 747-200 for $64 million in 1981. He also says Braniff expects to report record net income of about $15 million, or 75 cents a share, for the third quarter ending Sept. 30. Braniff expects record net for the year of at least $45 million, or $2.25 a share, on revenue of about $960 million, he adds.

Chemical Expects Higher Earnings

Chemical New York Corp., parent of Chemical Bank, expects third-quarter operating earnings to be up at least 16 percent from the year-earlier period, according to chairman Donald Platt. He said third-quarter per share net should increase by about 13 percent. He added that per-share amounts for the quarter will be hindered somewhat by the year-to-year impact of a $100-million preferred stock issue sold in August. Chemical also hopes to increase its return on equity over the next five years to more than 13 percent, he said.

Esso Australia Finds New Field

The Esso Exploration and Production Australia-Broken Hill Pty. partnership has recovered oil from the West Hallett well in Bass Strait and established the existence of a new oilfield, BHP reports. Three wireline tests from the interval 2,383 to 2,436 meters recovered oil and further tests are being carried out to evaluate the commercial significance. The full extent of the new field, to be named the Fortescue Field, cannot be evaluated until more drilling is carried out. The well has reached a final depth of 2,577 feet.

Gulf to Drill in Baltimore Canyon

Gulf Oil said it received permission from the U.S. Geological Survey to drill its Baltimore Canyon block 875 No.1 well, mid-Atlantic area, offshore New Jersey, to a new depth of 19,000 feet. The well has been logged to a depth of 17,640 feet and a seven-inch liner will be run to that point. Gulf said the logs and cores taken in the 857 well are not conclusive in defining its hydrocarbon potential, therefore a testing program is being planned to begin upon completion of drilling. Gulf is operator with 50-percent interest in the block.

Confronting 'Real Dimensions' of Problems

French Steel Firms Accept Rescue Plan

PARIS, Sept. 21 (AP-DJ) — The French government's latest rescue plan for the steel industry, which gives it virtual control, received grudging approval from steel makers.

Jacques Ferry, president of the Steel Industry Federation, said today that the government rescue plan was "a real dimension" of problems faced by the industry but firmly rejected arguments that the firms involved were responsible.

"The problems aren't new and stem from (government) constraints imposed during the past 25 years in the field of prices and employment," he told a news conference.

Mr. Ferry described the government's plan as "a courageous surgical operation," adding that the industry would do its utmost to see that its objectives are successfully achieved. Asked whether the plan was tantamount to nationalization, Mr. Ferry said: "For the time being, we have to accept the government's stand... That it doesn't want to exercise control."

[The nation's two largest steel unions called on steel workers in the Lorraine to strike Sept. 25 in protest against the government plans, which they fear will involve large-scale layoffs, Reuters reported.]

Under the plan announced yesterday, the government will have a direct participation of 15 percent in new holding companies to be set up to control France's 3 leading steel concerns — Usinor, Sacilor and Chiers. It will also have indirect control over another 40 percent through stakes to be held by government agencies.

Additionally, state-owned creditor banks will own some 20 percent of the capital of the holding companies, giving the government virtual control.

Mr. Ferry strongly criticized the government's method of announcing the replacement of present corporate executive officers.

"It is shocking and unjust to blame present management for the industry's situation... They are the victims of government dirigisme of the past few years," he said.

The fact that the government announced the firing of top executives of the firms involved "casts doubts" on its stated intention not to interfere in the affairs of the steel industry, he said.

Mr. Ferry said steelmakers were not consulted about the new rescue plan. "The government decided that it was up to the creditors to dictate their law, and (existing) shareholders were presented a fait accompli," he said.

"I dispute the government's decision to give existing shareholders only minority interests in the new holding companies and turning them into sleeping partners," he said.

He said that the government's direct participation, even if only of 15 percent, is contrary to its policy of encouraging free enterprise. The official said that the three firms involved accounted for 72 percent of the nation's production and 60 percent of its turnover.

The firms excluded from the plan, which account for the remaining 40 percent of turnover, manufacture specialty steels and were less affected by the crisis, he said.

Mr. Ferry added that he expects the Belgian government to come up with its own plan soon to restructure the Belgian steel industry, although he did not elaborate.

Shares Suspended

Meanwhile, trading in French steel shares was suspended on the Paris stock exchange until further notice at the request of the Economics Ministry, the Paris Stock-brokers' Association announced.

The shares involved are Chiers, Sacilor, Marine-Wendel, Denain, and Usinor, which are listed at the Paris Bourse, and Neuves-Maisons, listed in Nancy.

The suspension applies both to ordinary shares and convertible bonds traded on the cash and forward markets.

Steel Monitor Formed

PARIS, Sept. 21 (AP-DJ) — The U.S., Japan and the European Economic Community today agreed to set up an autonomous and permanent steel committee within the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development to monitor world market developments in an attempt to ward off growing protectionist tendencies.

Dutch Deficit Widens

THE HAGUE, Sept. 21 (AP-DJ) — The Netherlands' trade deficit widened to 843 million guilders (about $396 million) in July from 693 million in the year-earlier month, the Economics Ministry reported today. July imports rose to 8,829 billion guilders from 8,334 billion a year earlier while exports rose to 7,986 billion guilders from 7,841 billion.

To Avoid U.S., EEC Trade War

Strauss Seeks to Extend Waiver

By Hobart Rowen

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (WP) — Special trade representative Robert Strauss yesterday initiated what he admits is a desperate last-minute effort to get Congress to pass special legislation to avert a trade war with Europe at the turn of the year. Such a trade war, he fears, could spell the end of the Multilateral Trade Negotiations (MTNs).

In an extraordinary session in the office of House Majority Leader Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., attended by influential Republicans as well as Democrats, Mr. Strauss begged the Congressmen to extend for six months the president's authority to waive countervailing duties on Common Market exports.

Primarily, this is an issue involving European agricultural exports such as canned hams, dairy products and Danish butter cookies. These exports are highly subsidized, but the United States — which sells a much greater volume of agricultural products to Europe than it buys — has been waiving the countervailing duties that normally would be imposed.

The trouble is that this authority expires Jan. 3 and a Congress increasingly steeped in protectionist sentiment has not been anxious to renew the legislation.

Looks Doubtful

Meanwhile, the Multilateral Trade Negotiations dealing with these issues on an overall basis have been going on in Geneva — but it looks doubtful, despite a promised Dec. 15 deadline — that the MTNs will be completed before Jan. 3.

In a speech in Mr. O'Neill's office, Mr. Strauss said, "The Europeans don't understand it. They think it's firing a gun at the people we're negotiating with."

In a letter to Mr. Strauss from European Economic Community vice president Wilhelm Haferkamp, the Europeans had argued the deadline was a "time bomb." A U.S. official noted that as the countervailing duties automatically were put on, the Europeans would retaliate by closing down some of the $6 billion in U.S. agricultural exports.

Authority Requested

Mr. Strauss proposed that the O'Neill meeting that Congress pass a simple amendment, tacked onto some appropriate bill, that would let the countervailing waiver expire on schedule Jan. 3, unless the special trade representative's office notified Congress that "he has in hand a complete document winding up the Tokyo Round." In that case, the waiver would be extended to July 1.

Mr. Strauss explained that would give Congress additional time to examine the MTNs and to see if it looked like a fair treaty — especially the provisions that make certain that all unfair subsidies, especially those on agricultural products, are abandoned.

In an interview, Mr. Strauss made clear that such a provision also would increase his negotiating leverage with his European counterparts. He would be in a position to suggest that unless Europe improves trade and tariff offers the United States now considers inadequate, the waiver authority will expire for good in midyear.

The amounts of affected European exports are relatively small in absolute terms — canned hams at $230 million are the biggest item. But for individual countries it is crucial. Thirty percent of all Danish exports would be affected by countervailing duties.

The congressional reaction was not enthusiastic. Mr. O'Neill grumbled that he would rather know what the administration is proposing to do about the sinking dollar and the growing trade deficit.

Sentiment Growing

All present noted that protectionist sentiment is growing, and the legislative calendar is heavy. But in the end, they told Mr. Strauss if he can drum up bipartisan and private-sector support, they will help him.

Next, Mr. Strauss will seek senatorial support for the amendment. Mr. Strauss' low-key evaluation: "It's very doubtful — only a 50-50 chance." But those who know Mr. Strauss' standing on the Hill think that he may pull it off.

NYSE Prices End Mixed;
M-1 Declines $1 Billion

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (Reuters)

— Stocks finished mixed in moderately active trading on the New York Stock Exchange today as concern over interest rates and dollar weakness was offset by a rally attempt.

Analysts said rising interest rates have destroyed the premise, widely held during the rally this summer, that interest rates would peak by year's end.

There is no consensus now about when a peak can be expected, they felt, and investors, particularly institutions, are reluctant to commit large sums to the market.

After the market close, the Federal Reserve said the nation's M-1 money supply for the week ended

Sept. 13 fell $1 billion to $360.2 billion against a revised $361.2 billion. M-2 rose $200 million to $861.4 billion against a revised $861.2 billion.

The Dow Jones industrial average added 3.98 points to 861.14, but declines led advances 914 to 582. Volume fell to 33.64 million shares from yesterday's 35.08 million.

Blue chips and glamor issues were mostly higher. General Motors added 1/4 to 62 1/2, Boeing 2 1/2 to 65 1/2, Burroughs 1 1/2 to 79 1/2, Du Pont two to 122, Exxon 3/4 to 50 1/2, Polaroid 1 1/2 to 49 1/2 and Xerox 1 1/2 to 55 1/2. IBM eased 1/4 to 284 and Dow Chemical 1/4 to 27 1/2.

Standard Oil of Indiana lost 1/4 to 53. It said it is considering some type of association with Kennecott Copper but denied market rumors it planned to tender for 30 percent of Kennecott shares at $40 each. Kennecott gained 1 1/2 to 27 1/2 after a trading halt.

Gulf Oil added 3/4 to 26 on approval of further drilling in the Baltimore Canyon.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange rose, with the market-value index up 0.16 points to 166.48.

In Chicago, wheat, corn and soybeans were substantially lower and oats lower at the close today on the Board of Trade.

Wheat was off 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 cents; corn off 3/4 across the board; oats off 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 and soybeans off 15 1/2 to 2 1/2 cents.

House Approves Budget

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21 (Reuters) — The House approved a resolution setting a $38.8 billion budget deficit for fiscal 1979. The deficit is $21.2 billion below the $60-billion deficit in President Carter's January budget. The resolution, which must also be passed by the Senate but which does not require Mr. Carter's signature, calls for federal spending of $487.5 billion.

Ford Offers
U.K. Unions
5% Pay Rise

LONDON, Sept. 21 (AP-DJ) — In negotiations expected to set the standard for private-sector contracts, Ford Motor today offered its 56,000 hourly paid workers in Britain pay rises averaging 5 percent, right in line with the government's fourth-phase pay policy limits.

The company also asked unions to discuss the possibility of further pay increases linked to increased productivity.

The unions had been seeking across-the-board pay boosts of about 25 percent a week, plus a reduction in the work week to 35 hours for the new annual contract scheduled to come into effect in late October.

The unions' demands for £20 a week in pay increases, if granted, would clearly break the government's policy of keeping pay rises at an average of 5 percent in the 12 months ending next July.

British Ford director Paul Roots told the union negotiators that Ford was making a "socially responsible offer." He estimated that conceding the unions' claim would add at least 60 percent to labor costs, without meeting the demand for shorter hours.

U.S. Unit Moves
To Halt Rates
By Soviet Ships

SEATTLE, Sept. 21 (AP-DJ) — The U.S. National Maritime Council is planning a massive, coordinated effort to force the Soviet merchant marine to halt its rate-slashing practices, council chairman James Barker said yesterday.

The organization, which represents both management and labor in the shipping industry, will seek cooperation of traditional maritime nations throughout the world, he said.

When the council focused recently on Soviet ships carrying U.S. government-financed passenger buses into the United States, Moscow "claimed they made a clerical error," he recalled. "We're going to see to it they do a better job in the future."

Reynolds Fleet Program

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C., Sept. 21 (AP-DJ) — R.J. Reynolds Industries announced today a fleet modernization and globe-circling shipping program of about $580 million to strengthen the leadership position of its subsidiary Sea-Land Service Inc.

The two-year capital program calls for the construction of 12 energy-efficient high-technology container ships.

Eni

Twenty five years during which ENI has constantly contributed to the growth of Italy's economy and has been able to find answers to the problems created by the energy crisis. ENI today is committed to Italy on the difficult road towards economic recovery. 103,000 employees, 13,391 million dollars in turnover, 12,066 million dollars in investments, these are the dimensions of the ENI Group, a vast industrial reality, which operates on every continent.

In 1977, 43.6% of Italy's consumption of hydrocarbons for energy was supplied by ENI Group companies, which distributed 25.6 thousand million cubic meters of natural gas and 28 million tons of petroleum products.

But ENI is not only oil and natural gas; it is also nuclear energy, alternative energy sources, chemicals, engineering, mechanical engineering, textiles, and now mining, metallurgy and textile machinery. A growing involvement in research, thousands of millions of dollars in foreign orders in hand, an important contribution towards balancing Italy's external payments.

Detroit Crushes Boston

Yankees, Blue Jays Split

TORONTO, Sept. 21 (AP) — Lou Piniella, Chris Chambliss and Greg Nettles delivered run-scoring singles in the ninth inning last night, rallying the New York Yankees to a 3-2 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays for a split of their doubleheader.

The Blue Jays won the opener, 8-6, on a home run by pitcher Steve Carlton and an RBI by Mike Willis, 3-6. The split, coupled with Detroit's 12-2 triumph over the Red Sox, gave the Yankees a two-game lead over Boston in the American League East.

Toronto's Tom Underwood pitched 8 1/3 innings of the midget, allowing just three hits, but he left after Willie Randolph's single and Reggie Jackson. Then Nettles, Chambliss and Nettles connected for their clutch hits.

In the first game, back-to-back singles by Rick Bosetti and Bob Miller capped a six-hit, five-run eighth inning by the Blue Jays that ended Carlton's seven-game winning streak.

Tigers 12, Red Sox 2

At Detroit, Rusty Staub drove in four runs, three with a home run, as the Tigers routed the Red Sox 12-2.

At Los Angeles, the Dodgers won 10-1 over the Angels. The Dodgers' Steve Garvey hit a three-run homer and Dave Rozema fired a five-hitter as the Tigers amassed 15 hits and beat the Red Sox.

Jerry Remy got three of Boston's hits against Rozema. Jim Rice belted a two-run homer in the ninth, his 42nd, to spoil the shutout bid.

Twins 5, Rangers 3

At Bloomington, Minn., Dan Ford had three hits and drove in two runs, while Goltz scattered eight hits, pacing Minnesota to a 5-3 triumph over Texas. Goltz, 14-10, recorded his 12th complete game, walking two and striking out three.

Brewers 5, Royals 4

At Kansas City, Sal Bando tripled in the tying run and Paul Molitor doubled home the game-winning run in the eighth to give Milwaukee a 5-4 victory over Kansas City. The defeat reduced the Royals' first-place lead in the Western Division to five games over California.

Phillies 4, Expos 2

In the National League, at Montreal, Greg Luzinski hit a two-run homer and Mike Schmidt followed with a solo home run in the sixth to lift Philadelphia to a 4-2 triumph over Montreal, moving the Phillies two games ahead of second-place Pittsburgh in the National League East. Philadelphia led, 1-0, entering the sixth inning when Garry Maddox hit a one-out double against loser Dan Schatzeder, 7-6. Luzinski followed with his 32nd homer and Schmidt hit his 21st.

Cubs 5, Pirates 1

At Chicago, Bill Buckner batted in two runs with a single and a sacrifice fly to help Mike Krukow to a four-hit, 5-1 victory for Chicago, ending a seven-game Pittsburgh winning streak. Buckner's single came in the first inning, scoring Ivan DeJesus. In the fourth, DeJesus walked, reached third on Manny Trillo's single and scored on Buckner's sacrifice fly before Dave Kingman followed with a double to score Trillo.

Braves 3, Astros 2

At Houston, Glenn Hubbard's two-out single in the ninth scored pinch-runner Ed Miller with the winning run and gave Atlanta a 3-2 victory over Houston. Joe Nolan singled with one out to start the inning and Miller went in to run for him. Miller stole second and scored one out later on Hubbard's single to left.

Giants 6, Padres 3

At San Diego, Vida Blue got his first victory in six weeks, but failed for the seventh straight time to go the distance in a 6-3 triumph by San Francisco over San Diego. Blue, 17-9, had dropped five in a row and the Giants had lost 12 of their last 14 entering the game.

Mets 7, Cardinals 6

At St. Louis, a two-run single by Tim Lincecum, followed by a single off reliever Aurelio Lopez, Henderson scored on a sacrifice fly by John Stearns, Dan Norman singled and Montanez scored on a sacrifice fly by Elliott Maddox.

Reds 4, Dodgers 3

At Los Angeles, Tom Seaver pitched a five-hitter for 8 1/3 innings and set a major league strikeout record while George Foster hit a two-run homer in leading Cincinnati to a 4-3 triumph over Los Angeles. The loss prevented the Dodgers from clinching at least a tie for the National League West pennant. Seaver, 15-14, recorded his 200th strikeout of the season to become the first pitcher to strike out 200 or more batters in 10 different seasons.

Thurman Munson slides safely into second on a wild pitch as Luis Gomez of Toronto takes late throw in opener of doubleheader with New York. Blue Jays won, 8-1, but Yankees took the nightcap.

Knicks Await Ruling On Deal for Webster

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (AP) — The big question hanging over the New York Knicks' camp is who will be going to Seattle as compensation for Marvin Webster. It probably will be another week before Larry O'Brien, the National Basketball Association commissioner, makes his decision. But Knicks forward Lonnie Shelton has already made inquiries as to how much it would cost to move his worldly goods to the West Coast.

Reports from New Orleans say that the rift between rebounding champion Truck Robinson and the Jazz front office is a wide one. It will take considerable fence-mending to get Robinson back into a New Orleans uniform.

Scoring king George Gervin, originally a oo-shoo at the San Antonio Spurs' training camp, reported this week. He is seeking to have his contract renegotiated after his brilliant 1977-78 season.

Gervin has five years remaining on an eight-year contract calling for $150,000 a season. The Spurs agreed over the summer to talk about a new deal, but Gervin's agent, Pat Healy of Tacoma, Wash., says that his client rejected an offer of $300,000 a year for eight years.

Doug Moe, the easy-going coach of the Spurs and one of Gervin's biggest boosters, is not too upset. "I'm approaching the big 40," he said. "Life's too short to worry."

Curtis Perry has announced his retirement from the Phoenix Suns. They will miss his muscle under the boards. The Suns, with a fine center in Alvin Adams, need strong rebounders at the forward position and Perry's retirement puts the pressure squarely on Gar Heard.

Geoff Petric is trying to make a comeback with the Atlanta Hawks. The 30-year-old Petric, two-time all-star and co-rookie of the year in 1971 with Dave Cowens, sat out last season following knee surgery. He survived the Hawks' rookie and free-agent camp and spent the summer playing in Philadelphia's Baker League.

"My shooting touch returned and I had a 40-point game," the former Princeton star said. "But they don't play much defense in those summer leagues — and I also had a couple of two-point games. By the end of the exhibition season I should know whether I can or can't play."

Ken Benson, who had a very disappointing rookie year, holds the key to Milwaukee's season. The Bucks are solid at the other four positions, but center is a problem unless Benson comes on strong and displaces steady but unspectacular John Gianelli.

Benson, closer to 6-9 than the 6-11 he was listed while at Indiana, was the most valuable player in the Los Angeles summer league, averaging 27.5 points and 10.6 rebounds a game.

Reports from Los Angeles say that the Lakers spent the summer trying to deal Jamal Wilkes or Adrian Dantley, hoping to acquire a big rebounding forward in return.

Italian Driver Is Barred From U.S. Grand Prix

From Wire Dispatches
WATKINS' GLEN, N.Y., Sept. 21 — Italian driver Riccardo Patrese has been banned from driving in the U.S. Grand Prix here on Oct. 1, race director Malcolm Currie said today. He declined to give a reason for the ban, saying: "We can refuse any entry."

The decision coincided with a plea from four of the world's top racing drivers that Patrese be barred.

James Hunt, Niki Lauda, Emerson Fittipaldi and Jody Scheckter made the demand, it was revealed today. Their plea follows the multiple-car accident at the Italian Grand Prix at Monza two weeks ago, in which Swedish driver Ronnie Peterson was killed.

Although Patrese, 24, was exonerated of responsibility for the mishap by an Italian court of inquiry, the drivers, who form a safety committee, obviously feel differently. Patrese drives for the Arrows racing team.

Security Costs Assured

Carter Vows to Aid L.A. Games

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 21 (UPI) — After a year of wrangling between the city and the International Olympic Committee, the key decision-maker in the 1984 Olympics, President Jimmy Carter, has promised that the federal government will provide "necessary security and appropriate assistance" to the city.

Carter has promised that the federal government will provide "necessary security and appropriate assistance" to the city.

city worries that the police department alone could not cope with the Games and that the city could not pay the bill for additional manpower.

The city already has escaped responsibility for the cost of organizing the Games. The proposed contract still must be approved by the members of the IOC, the U.S. Olympic Committee — which reduced the games by agreeing to underwrite any debts — and the city council.

In Sept. 19 letter, Carter congratulated the city on its tentative designation as host of the Games, but recognized "the magnitude of the security problems." He noted that the federal government is already involved in security arrangements for the Pan-American Games in Puerto Rico and the 1980 winter Olympics in Lake Placid, N.Y.

"Although it is premature to determine the specific nature of assistance that the city of Los Angeles and the state of California will receive from the federal government for the 1984 Olympics," Carter said, "I assure you that necessary and appropriate assistance will be forthcoming."

"I look forward to working with you to insure the success of the Games," Carter wrote the mayor.

"I'm very pleased with the president's assurance," Bradley said. "The Olympics are for the entire country as well as for the city of Los Angeles."

John Argue, chairman of the private Los Angeles Olympic Committee, said that he believed Carter's letter removed the last argument within the city government.

"The critics have had several things to say, and I think we've satisfied them in every other respect. They seemed to have focused on security in recent weeks, and I think this letter should answer those questions," he said.

"It's obvious that the federal government has an interest in maintaining security at international events held in the United States, and we have said right along that we expected federal assistance. Now we have a rather strong letter from President Carter confirming what we have said."

Four goals within 10 minutes in the first half set the match alight and the excitement continued to the final whistle. Both defenses looked brittle and were punished by superb finishing.

England grabbed the lead in the first half. It was created and scored by Kevin Keegan of SV Hamburg, aided by the elegant Trevor Brooking, who had a hand in England's first three goals.

Keegan was brought down by the rugged Flemming Lund and Brooking floated over a perfect free kick which Keegan leaped to flick home with his head.

Keegan made it 2-0 five minutes later, with a diving header after Brooking's pass had been headed on by Dave Watson.

Suddenly, Denmark changed gear and within four minutes was even. Henning Munk Jensen scored the first from a penalty after Phil Neal had fouled Soren Lerby. England barely had time to recover before Frank Arnesen equalized, tapping in a lovely pass from Jorgen Knudsen. But six minutes into the second half, the Danes were losing again — Brooking laid on a perfect cross, which Keegan missed but Bob Latchford snuffed up.

Fullback Neal scored the fourth six minutes from time, robbing Knudsen on the edge of the area and slamming the ball home himself.

But Denmark was still not finished and a minute later England's defense made another error and Per Ronvold reduced the deficit to 4-3.

In other games last night, the Netherlands, World Cup finalist three months ago, began its bid for the European soccer championship with a 3-0 victory over Iceland, but Scotland and Hungary, sharing unhappy memories of Argentina, flopped again.

Finland's 2-1 victory over Hungary was the best performance though Hungary picked up a consolation goal 16 minutes from the end.

Austria beat Scotland, 3-2, their second victory in the championship. They beat Norway, 2-0, last month.

Norway held out for an unexpected 1-1 draw with Belgium.

Finland's 2-1 victory over Hungary was the best performance though Hungary picked up a consolation goal 16 minutes from the end.

England Edges Denmark, 4-3, Takes Lead in Group 1

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 21 (Reuters) — In a thrilling match of wildly fluctuating fortunes, England squeezed home to a 4-3 victory last night over Denmark to go to the top of Group 1 in the European soccer championship.

On two occasions, England appeared to have had the game won but the talented Danish team fought back and it was England which was grimly holding on when the final whistle sounded.

Lowell Thomas: A Man Who Drank With the Best and Wore a Fine Hat

By Henry Allen

WASHINGTON (WP) — Lowell Thomas, who is 86 now, has been blessed by the three-breasted goddess at Madura, filmed the legendary Leopard Men of Africa, and smashed his thighbone in the 17,000-foot remoteness of the Tibetan Himalayas.

The other day, he ordered an omelette at a Washington restaurant. The globe-peddling radio legend stopped eating it when he was asked about his hero, Lawrence of Arabia, and the latter-day attacks on him, such as Malcolm Muggeridge calling Lawrence a "mendacious little sodomite."

The reply, like a lot of Thomas replies, required a bit of unfolding. "I never got into politics, but I would like to get in now," he began in that winning-friendly-and-influencing-people baritone that resonated for 53 years on radio ("Good evening, everybody"), crackled out of the Fox Movietone News, and nowadays underscores TV's "Lowell Thomas Remembers."

"I would like to help some man become president. When he got to be president [dramatic pause] he would name me ambassador [dramatic pause] to the Court of St. James's. For one year. Long enough so that I could address the major gatherings, at the Pilgrim's Club at the Guild Hall, for instance."

"I would tell the British how stupid they've been. Lawrence played a key role in ending World War I and then the bastards try to tear him apart. I would like to be ambassador some place where I could tactfully tell them . . . the Pilgrim's Club."

National Town Meeting

Thomas was in Washington to answer questions at a National Town Meeting, broadcast on radio from the Kennedy Center. There, too, of course, one question was about T.E. Lawrence. Thomas made a million dollars in 1919 showing his films of Lawrence, shouting the narration over orchestral accompaniment for two hours to crowds in Madison Square Garden, the Royal Albert Hall, crowds all over the English-speaking world.

That was just the beginning of Thomas' metamorphosis from Colorado newspaperman and Princeton professor into an international celebrity.

He has written 55 or 56 books — he isn't sure which. He's traveled to every place he could get good film footage and anecdotes. He has gotten himself photographed in riding boots, desert robes, Arctic parkas, pith helmets; with President Hoover, Nehru, New Guinea cannibals, the Dalai Lama, Eddie Rickenbacker, Gene Tunney.

And now he is the last of all that, the last man in America to wear a hairline moustache, a survivor of the era when merely flying in an airplane made you somebody. Darkest Africa was still dark then; we still believed in islands that time forgot and Lowell Thomas brought it all back alive.

Gray-Haired Crowd

After he talked at the Kennedy Center, the gray-haired crowd pressed to the stage, thronged the stage door, ambushed him out on the sidewalk and began all their sentences with "I remember."

"Good," Thomas would say, with an old-age cunning that could have been grace, cynicism, wisdom or arrogance.

"I've had too much exposure," he said during the taxi ride to the restaurant. It was pointed out that, in fact, he was once the second-highest-paid man in radio, behind Arthur Godfrey. "I don't know," he said. "I don't know."

Not that he's untalented. "After 80," he likes to say, "everything reminds you of something."

At the restaurant, for instance, he ran into Cornelius Roosevelt, grandson of Theodore. "Teddy used to hunt on the north rim of the Grand Canyon," he said over his omelette. "He had a guide who used to climb trees and capture mountain lions by sticking his hand down their throats. I had him on my radio show. People were frightened of radio back then. He wet his pants. This mountain lion stranger got up and the chair was wet."

Another Breed

Thomas, of course, is one of the last of yet another breed: the raconteur. He is the American man of action and experience, at home with all classes. He even dresses the part in his tan cowboy-cut jacket — scalloped pockets and belted back — and his Stetson.

And how the names spill off his lips. "Lloyd George invited me up to his box. A king or a prime minister doesn't visit you in your dressing room, you visit him, and Lloyd George had with him that night a young man. And he introduced him to me. He said, 'I'd like you to meet Winston Churchill.'"

In just a few minutes, he can mention Norman Vincent Peale, Mickey Rooney, Gerald Ford, polar explorers Scott and Amundsen, Clarence Darrow, Jimmy Doolittle, Dale Carnegie. One of his regrets in life, he says, was that "when I was doing the Lawrence shows, every night my manager would tell me: 'Shaw's in the audience! Kipling! Hardy!' And I never had time to meet them."

Lost a Million

Thomas lost the million he made on those first Lawrence lectures when he tried to spin off subsidiary lectures managed by self-help tycoon Dale Carnegie. "He couldn't handle it. Had a physical breakdown while I was in Australia. It seemed that the people had to have me giving the talks."

He quickly made the money back churning out books, talking, touring, filming, and then doing his nightly 15-minute radio news show.

Except: "I never handled the news just as news. It was always the day-to-day adventures of the human race. And I always ended with something on the lighter side."

His staff has always been forbidden to use the words "lecture," "travelogue" or "documentary."

"You say documentary, people think of soil erosion. Travelogue was a word that was invented to get away from lecture, and lecture suggests you're trying to educate people."

Lowell Thomas in radio studio in 1934.

So what, in fact, was he doing? "I don't know," he said. "Nothing serious. I don't give a damn if they get education out of me or not. I was more pleased if they'd come up and say they enjoyed it."

"You see, by accident, my first big thing was the story of the Lawrence campaign. It caught the imagination of everybody. Once you've had that feeling, you want more of it."

He got it. By now, he knows the five most common questions crowds will ask, in order of frequency: Where are you coming from? Where are you going? Where haven't you been? What's the most fascinating place you've been? And: Tell us about Lawrence of Arabia.

He had come from his 350-acre estate, Hammersley Hills, in Pawling, N.Y. He was headed back to work on a new book, one-page anecdotes about 200 famous men he has known. He hasn't been to "a lot of small, out-of-the-way places." Tibet, before "the Reds" took over, was the most fascinating.

Life has been good. Last year, three years after his wife of 58 years died, he married Marianna, who is 50. Lowell Jr. is lieutenant governor of Alaska, and he has two grandchildren.

He never takes political, philosophical or economic positions. He has to think for a while when he is asked for someone he disliked. "Mussolini," he says.

But why? Thomas shrugs. "I didn't find him at all attractive," he says. "Good public speaker, though."

On the way out of the restaurant, he darted into a closet, looking for his hat. The head waiter was already coming down the hall with it, a pale beige Stetson that Thomas wears with the brim up, all around.

"I've lost these all over the world," he said. And of course there's an anecdote, about the Air Force colonel who found one Thomas had left on a barstool in Saigon. "Six months later, I got a letter. It said: 'I found a hat with your name in it, and you're not about to get it back.'"

All of which goes to show that Lowell Thomas is a man who drank with the best people all over the world and always wore a fine hat. Lesser epigraphs have been written.

PEOPLE: Mrs. Thatcher Assures She's Only Human

Margaret Thatcher, the leader of Britain's Conservative Party, said that she is not above having a cry when the pressure gets too intense. "There are times," she told Sally O'Sullivan in an interview in the October issue of Women's World, "when I get home at night and everything has got on top of me, when I shed a few tears, silently, alone." Mrs. Thatcher has been called such things as the "Iron Maiden" and the "Warrior Queen" for her toughness in the political arena. But she said in the interview: "I am a very emotional person. I've never known a person to be insensitive about things which are wounding and hurtful, and I'm no exception. Mrs. Thatcher's remarks in the nationally circulated magazine prompted the Daily Mirror, which generally supports the governing Labor Party, to ask in an editorial: "What would happen if the Russians squeezed Berlin again? Or put nuclear missiles into Cuba? Or broke out in the Middle East? Or the miners went on strike again? Would everything stop while she got her hankies out?"

Fifty-two years ago, mystery writer Agatha Christie gave a real-life puzzle by disappearing for 11 days and reappearing with no explanation. Now a book and film are out with a fictionalized account of the episode. It is not so flattering to the late author, who died in 1976, so her family sued to bar distribution. Her daughter Rosalind Hicks said that the book, "Agatha," which has Miss Christie cooking up a plot to murder her husband's mistress, infringes on the heirs' right to profit from their mother's name. Not so, says U.S. District Court Judge Lawrence Pierce in New York — her fans may never know the truth about the disappearance, but they have a right to read the fiction.

Gloria Steinem's sermon at a Catholic church in Minneapolis has brought a storm of protest calls and letters to Archbishop John Roach, an aide to the bishop said. The feminist leader and publisher of Ms. magazine delivered the homily at two masses at St. Joan of Arc Catholic Church. Both services were packed and some people had to be turned away. A spokesman for the archdiocese said that the bishop received 150 calls and many letters complaining of the sermon —

In Brisbane, Australia, seven men and two women have been freed on bail until Oct. 2 on charges of hitting British anti-pornography campaigner Mary Whitehouse with pies. The strawberry-colored pies, which soiled Mrs. Whitehouse's skirt and blouse, were hurled as she spoke to about 1,000 persons at a Festival of Light rally in Brisbane City Hall. The seven were freed on bail after pleading not guilty of aggravated assault.
